HOODLUM PHOTOS
IN HOPE FOR CLUE
TO KOENIG KILLERMan Who Says He Saw Victim Being Carried Thinks He Could Identify One of Two Suspects.

Photographs of St. Louis area hoodlums were shown at the East St. Louis police station today to a man who says he saw Gambler J. Fred Koenig being carried by two men on an East Side highway the night Koenig was murdered.

The man, who volunteered the information after his arrest in another case, said he obtained a good look at the two men with Koenig. He said he thought he would be able to identify at least one of them.

Koenig, who was operating a racing-results service for handbooks in competition with a service conducted by associates of gang boss Frank (Buster) Wortman, disappeared the night of June 20 after going to the Red Rooster roadhouse near Fairmount race track.

The witness claimed he saw the man he believed to be Koenig being supported by the other men early the morning of June 21. The place was an isolated area on Alternate Route 67, north of East St. Louis, near the Stork Club, a tavern which was destroyed by fire several days after Koenig's death.

Body Found in Auto.

Koenig's body, with bullet holes in the head and chest, was discovered June 22 in the trunk of his automobile. The machine was parked on an East St. Louis street.

The witness, whose identity has not been revealed, said he was driving on Alternate Route 67 about 12:30 a.m. June 21 and saw the group of three men beside an automobile parked at the side of the highway.

The automobile was a late model two-toned green sedan with a Michigan license, the witness said. The description, except for the license plate, matched that of an automobile from which shots were fired at Kenneth Mueller, an associate of Koenig, on May 17.

Mueller was wounded on that occasion and shots also were fired into the automobile of another Koenig associate, Birney T. (Chick) Haver Jr., the same day.

Detective Sgt. Charles Lewis and Detective Elmer Hill, who questioned the prisoner, said the man told them he drove past the group and then backed up to them to see if they needed help.

"He told us he recognized the man being given assistance as Koenig," Hill related. "He said the shorter of the two men with Koenig came over to his automobile and asked gruffly, 'What do you want?'"

Was Told to 'Get Going.'

"He tells us he offered help and the man, who spoke in a sharp voice, advised him to 'get going.' The man appeared to be so unfriendly, our witness said, that he drove away without taking any further notice of the group."

Hill said the witness gave a good description of the two men. The shorter man had a slender face and a light complexion, he said, was about five feet, six inches tall, and wore a brown suit. The larger man was described as more than six feet in height and well dressed. The witness said both wore dark brown straw hats with snap brims.

Police are investigation Koenig's association with a group of gamblers who bilked a St. Louis handbook syndicate of $21,000 six weeks before the murder. The St. Louisans lost because they accepted bets after post time, unaware that the bettors were obtaining results ahead of them.

An acquaintance of Koenig told the Post-Dispatch he sometimes obtained race results as much as 30 minutes ahead of the regular service. In recent months his service has come from Indianapolis, Ind., Chicago and Kalamazoo, Mich.

LOUISIANA PLEA TO BAR U.S.
OFFSHORE OIL LEASES DENIED*Federal Judge Says Suit Over Disputed Area Is in Wrong Court.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—United States District Judge James W. Morris today rejected a plea by the State of Louisiana to forbid the Federal Government from leasing disputed submerged oil lands off the Louisiana coast.

Morris told attorneys for the state they have a right to take the case into the Supreme Court. But this suit, he said, was in the wrong court.

Louisiana claimed its legal boundary extended three leagues or 10 1/2 miles from its coastline. The Government held otherwise.

Both the state and Federal Government have asked for bids tomorrow for leasing offshore land to gas and oil companies for development. The Federal Government has invited the disputed area in its invitation. Some 73,500 acres are at stake.

18 OVERCOME
BY HEAT, 2 MEN
IN AREA DIE13 Victims Are Members

Units in Parade of Veterans' Groups.

Eighteen persons in the St. Louis metropolitan area were overcome by heat over the weekend, and one of them died. Today an East St. Louis man died after collapsing in the heat. No relief from the high temperatures was in prospect today or tomorrow.

Joe Branz, a butcher who lived at 4194 St. Louis avenue, East St. Louis, was the latest victim.

Mingo Boyd, a Negro, 3204 Lawton boulevard, died yesterday at Homer G. Phillips Hospital. He was 71 years old.

Thirteen of the heat victims were members of marching units of parades sponsored by veterans' organizations.

The highest temperature yesterday was 94 degrees at 5 p.m., with humidity of 53 per cent at noon. Continued hot and humid weather was forecast for today and tomorrow, with the maximum expected to be in the middle 90s. The temperature reached 90 at noon and continued rising.

Three persons were treated at City Hospital yesterday for the effects of heat. They are William L. Spiess, 4944 Berthold avenue; Mrs. Irma Hampel, 6265 Priests avenue; and George Malnar, 4404 West Pine boulevard.

At Belleville Saturday night six members of nine drum and bugle marching units on parade at the Township High School stadium collapsed in the hot and humid weather but were revived quickly.

CALGARY, Alta., July 11 (AP)—Looks like the 10-gallon hat is getting to be the trademark of the "new look" in Soviet diplomacy.

Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov acquired the first one during his June, sightseeing trip across the United States to the tenth United Nations anniversary celebration at San Francisco.

Russia's ambassador to Canada, D. S. Chuvashin, and the first secretary of his embassy, Nikolai Ostravsky, acquired theirs yesterday on arrival for the annual week-long Calgary stampede.

Reese discovered uranium on his farm two years ago, but not in commercial quantities. He forgot the matter.

Last September a stranger asked Reese if he could sit in his ditch. He had been taking radiation treatments for pains from rheumatism and thought he could get some help from the ditch while visiting Comanche relatives.

Reese told him to go ahead. The word spread. Soon sitters were tramping his fields and leaving gates open.

Reese thought he would stop that. He declared anyone could sit in his dirt for $2 for two hours. He built a shed big enough for six persons to sit on

HINTS GOPHERS
MAY BE FEASTING
ON GARDEN HOSES

LONDON, July 11 (UP)—A retired Australian professor said today he could explain what happened to California's disappearing garden hoses if they had disappeared in Australia.

In the land down under, Clive D. Sowth, professor emeritus of biology at the University of Sydney, said in a letter to the London News-Chronicle that he would have blamed the incidents on duck-billed platypuses.

"While investigating the digestive processes of these animals," he said, "we had occasion to open several burrows, in two of which we found partially digested lengths of rubber tubing. 'The most plausible explanation of this unusual behavior is that the platypus had mistaken the white hose pipe for the large Australian white worm (his favorite diet).'"

"Similar occurrences in America may be due to the activities of the common gopher or some other member of the eomidae family."

U.S. AND RUSSIAN
WEATHER BASES
TO BE SIDE BY SIDE

PARIS, July 11 (UP)—The United States and Russia decided at a 10-nation conference which ended yesterday to establish bases side by side in the remote Antarctic in the interests of world weather research. American scientists said.

The Antarctic studies will have an "immense impact" on man's knowledge of what happens on this planet, the scientists reported.

The conference was attended by the United States, Russia, France, Argentina, Chile, Australia, Britain, New Zealand, Norway and Belgium.

The Soviet and American plans to set up bases coincide with the "international geophysical year," an 18-month period beginning July 1957, the sources said.

Sunspots during this time are expected to be favorable for gathering data on weather, cosmic rays and other phenomena.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—President Eisenhower lunched with 32 of the nation's top athletes at the White House today and outlined a program to stimulate greater participation in sports by American youth.

What the program will entail has not yet been worked out. Vice President Nixon said. Nixon was reportedly named to head a committee to develop it.

The guests at the luncheon included golfers Jack Fleck, Lloyd Mangrum and Bobby Jones, boxers Gene Tunney and Archie Moore, baseball player Willie Mays, football star Ralph Guglielmi, tennis ace Tony Trabert, track stars Mal Whitfield and Wes Santee and basketball All-American Bill Russell.

RED CHINA 'HELL,' SAY 3 RELEASED
U.S. TURNCOATSFormer G.I.s Sail for U.S., Ready to Take Consequences of Their 'Mistakes.'

By WENDELL MERRICK
HONG KONG, July 11 (UP)—Three American turncoats, disillusioned with Communism after 18 months in Red China, sailed for the United States today, convinced that even an American prison is preferable to life under a Communist rule they described as "hell."

The three, who refused repatriation from North Korean prison camps in August 1953 and chose instead to live in Red China, were hustled aboard the American liner President Cleveland 10 minutes before its sailing time.

The men, who came out of Red China yesterday with the comment that "even death is better than Communism," had one-way travel documents good only for a direct trip to the United States and an uncertain fate. They were escorted aboard the liner by American consular officer S. M. Backe.

Three Are Sullen.

The three, William Cowart, 22 years old, of Dalton, Ga.; Lewis W. Griggs, 22, of Jacksonville, Tex.; and Otho G. Bell, 24, of Hillsboro, Miss., were sullen when they were flown into the third-class stowage in which they will make the Pacific crossing.

They refused to co-operate with news photographers and movie cameramen who wanted to take pictures of their departure.

All were former soldiers dishonorably discharged from the United States Army when they embraced Communism and refused repatriation at Panmunjom after having been taken prisoner by the Reds in the Korean war.

Resigned to Punishment.

They had worked for a time on a state farm and then in an agricultural implements factory in Red China before changing their minds about Communism and asking to be returned to their own country.

All three seemed resigned to facing punishment for their "mistakes" while P.O.W.s.

They went to China out of "fear," they said.

"It is a cause because it lends credibility to Soviet peace overtures and thus contributes mightily to the success of Soviet attempts to persuade the free world to tear down its defenses and make new concessions to its mortal enemy."

He said the "contrast between the Administration's never-ending talk of 'opening horizons' and 'new dawn,' and the real world of ruthless, unrelenting Communist imperialism has never been more vivid."

McCarthy's resolution would put the Senate on record as calling for a break in relations with the Communist-controlled regimes in Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, and Rumania. It would call for support of governments in exile to represent these countries.

McCarthy said the passage of a resolution merely expressing "the pious hope" that the people will gain their freedom would "invite the world to think we are hypocrites."

He added: "We invite them to conclude what they suspect already—namely, that the American government's concern for the oppressed peoples is a cheap politician's concern about how Americans of eastern European descent will vote in the next election."

KNOWLAND PUTS RESOLUTION ON SATELLITE LANDS
BEFORE SENATEBacked by President and Democratic Leaders,
It Expresses Hope of Freedom for Captive Peoples.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—Senator Knowland (Rep.) of California, introduced in the Senate today with the "full approval" of President Eisenhower a resolution expressing hope that captive peoples behind the Iron Curtain will gain their freedom.

Knowland, G.O.P. floor leader, told the Senate the resolution was being sponsored jointly by himself, Senator Clements of Kentucky, the acting Democratic leader; Senator George (Dem.) of Georgia, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee; and Senator Wiley of Wisconsin, top-ranking Republican on the committee.

The resolution was offered. Knowland said, "with the full knowledge and approval of the Department of State and of President Eisenhower."

As proposed, the resolution would put the Senate on record as proclaiming "the hope that the peoples who have been subjected to the captivity of alien despots shall again enjoy the right of self-determination within a framework which will sustain peace."

A Reply to McCarthy.

Knowland arose to offer the proposal after Senator McCarthy (Rep.) of Wisconsin had given notice he intended to speak later on a resolution he was proposing, calling for an end of diplomatic relations with Russian-dominated satellite governments and recognition of free governments in exile.

The Knowland resolution obviously was the Administration's reply to McCarthy's contention that recent defeat of an earlier McCarthy resolution would be interpreted elsewhere in the world as lack of American sympathy with fate of the peoples in the Soviet satellites.

McCarthy's earlier resolution would have asked President Eisenhower and Secretary of State John Foster Dulles to obtain advance agreement from the Russians to discuss the satellite issue at the Geneva Big Four conference.

It was defeated by the Senate 77 to 4 after leaders of both parties said it would sink the Geneva conference before it was held.

Flanders' Proposal.

(Republican Senator Flanders of Vermont proposed, meanwhile, that President Eisenhower renounce at the Geneva conference the United States use of atomic and hydrogen weapons against cities except in reprisal, the United Press reported.

Flanders said he put his proposal before Mr. Eisenhower but that the President gave no indication as to what he thought of it. Flanders said that, pending a disarmament agreement, this nation should retain a policy of using tactical atomic weapons against military targets to offset Russia's advantage in conventional military forces.

McCarthy released the text of a speech he said he planned to deliver later. In this text, he said he thinks the "free world's struggle for survival against world Communism is going very badly."

"I believe that the decision to go ahead with a Big Four meeting is both a symptom and a cause of the ever worsening international situation," he said. "It is a symptom because it is evidence we have been bamboozled by false Soviet peace propaganda."

"Mortal Enemy."

"It is a cause because it lends credibility to Soviet peace overtures and thus contributes mightily to the success of Soviet attempts to persuade the free world to tear down its defenses and make new concessions to its mortal enemy."

He said the "contrast between the Administration's never-ending talk of 'opening horizons' and 'new dawn,' and the real world of ruthless, unrelenting Communist imperialism has never been more vivid."

McCarthy's resolution would put the Senate on record as calling for a break in relations with the Communist-controlled regimes in Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, Poland, and Rumania. It would call for support of governments in exile to represent these countries.

HOUSE ON POWER DISPUTEWenzell Criminal Violation
Indicated, Kefauver Asserts
Senator Calls Dixon-Yates Deal 'More Important and in Many Ways Worse Than Teapot Dome.'

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, said yesterday there are strong indications that Adolph H. Wenzell, former New York investment banker, violated the criminal code in his "dual role" on the Dixon-Yates power contract.

Kefauver, chairman of a Senate subcommittee investigating the Dixon-Yates contract, was interviewed on NBC's radio and television program "Meet the Press." He said his group would send its findings to the Department of Justice when its inquiry is completed.

He expressed "hope" department officials will "do their duty" in the affair.

Wenzell declined to comment on Kefauver's charge. Reached in New York, he pointed out he "was not his testimony before Kefauver's subcommittee today and said he considered it best not to say anything last night."

Kefauver said the Government's contract with the Dixon-Yates power combine is "more important" and in many ways "worse" than the Teapot Dome scandal in the Harding Administration.

In the case of Teapot Dome, he said, $100,000,000 was involved. But the Dixon-Yates project, he said, means "cutting" the private utilities and investment bankers back into the Tennessee Valley and public power regions and "would mean billions and billions of dollars of securities for the investment bankers of Wall Street."

"The other difference," Kefauver said, "is that in the Teapot Dome they had to bribe some public officials in order to get some of the oil company representatives into the Government. In this case they did not have to bribe any government officials. They were invited in and welcomed with open arms."

In both Dixon-Yates and Teapot Dome, he said, there was an effort to conceal what was happening and "in both cases they were trying to cut in the big interests."

He called it part of a "crucial" and in many ways "worse" than the Teapot Dome scandal in the Harding Administration.

AMERICAN TRAVEL
BOOM SWAMPING
PASSPORT OFFICE

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—Americans are "on a colossal traveling spree" and are overworking the State Department's passport division.

Miss Frances Knight, head of the passport office, made that report at a recent secret session of a House Appropriations subcommittee. She said the department issued or renewed a record of 480,000 passports in the fiscal year which ended June 30. This was almost 50,000 more than the previous year's figure.

As a result of the travel boom, she said, her office is "completely overloaded" and has a huge backlog of work.

Miss Knight, whose testimony was just released, listed these factors among those prompting the American public to travel: "The war scare has subsided; there are more paid vacations; travel facilities are expanding; tourists and family rates are very attractive; credit travel is in its infancy (and) more retirements, adequate pensions and social security."

By that time, she said, "I mean Americans begin traveling at a tender age and keep on traveling to a ripe old age."

PLEA TO RUN AGAIN GETS ONLY CHUCKLE BY PRESIDENT

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—President Eisenhower beamed broadly but, as usual, refused to commit himself today when he received a petition from 54 Republican members of Congress to run for a second term.

Representatives Lawrence L. Curtis of Massachusetts, William H. Avery of Kansas, and Peter Frelinghuysen Jr. of New Jersey, presented the petition at the White House on the occasion of the third anniversary of Mr. Eisenhower's nomination for president.

"This is the first political business I've had today," the President said jovially as he shook hands all around.

A statement was read which praised Mr. Eisenhower for tremendous accomplishments in furthering world peace and for bringing America "unprecedented prosperity." The latter part of the statement urged him, to give favorable consideration to running again.

"I am very complimented on the first part of your statement," the President said. He chuckled at the second part, but, as Avery put it, made "no direct answer."

PARIS, July 11 (UP)—A French paleontological expedition in Algeria today was claiming to have made a sensational discovery proving the existence of a monkey-man 450,000 years ago.

The discovery was announced by the French Academy of Sciences.

Detailed information, the academy said, still has not been received. A brief telegram and letter from the excavation site in Algeria reported the discovery of a jaw bone in an excellent state of preservation near the town of Palika, in north-west Algeria.

BRIDGEPORT, Conn., July 11 (AP)—A Connecticut weekly newspaper has invited Pravda to send its dramatic critic to cover the opening of the American Shakespeare Festival at nearby Stratford tomorrow. The repercussions may reach high into the State Department.

The Russian newspaper replied in a cable to the Bridgeport Sunday Herald that the invitation arrived too late to send its critic from Russia. It said, however, that Pravda had instructed its New York correspondent, Eeseli Litoshko, to attend.

The cable, signed by deputy editor in chief Zhukov, asked what could be done to lift the travel restrictions on Russian citizens in the United States to allow the Pravda man to enter

GOV. CLEMENT
CALLS ON VOGEL
TO QUIT TVA POSTTennessee Executive Says Chairman Is Trying to Destroy Agency 'From Inside.'

NASHVILLE, Tenn., July 11 (UP)—Gov. Frank Clement called on Brig. Gen. Herbert H. Vogel today to resign as chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority on the ground that he is attempting to destroy TVA "from the inside."

Clement's blast was the latest in a word-and-action battle between public and private power. At stake was the proposed Dixon-Yates private power project at West Memphis, Ark., which was to feed power into the TVA system.

"We do not intend to allow the generals to dictate the terms of their own surrender," the Tennessee Governor said. "I question seriously whether Gen. Vogel is entitled any longer under the law governing his appointment to hold membership on the board of directors of the TVA."

"I know in my own mind that the man should resign the post," Clement said. "The national Administration has no right morally or legally to put an unsympathetic general in as chairman for the purpose of destroying the TVA from the inside."

The Governor's statement followed a report from Senator Albert Gore (Dem.) of Tennessee that Vogel had sent Memphis Mayor Frank Tobey a telegram outlining three steps the city must take before the Dixon-Yates power contract could be cancelled.

Gore said he had wired Vogel, "I have demanded to know, by what right Vogel or the TVA board of directors undertakes to dictate to the City of Memphis that she shall hastily purchase a plant site without careful survey, award contracts for equipment without an engineering study."

Gore disclosed that Vogel's telegram to the Mayor was sent by Vogel alone, without the concurrence of other members of the three-man TVA board. Vogel is the sole Eisenhower appointee on the board.

Gore said he had telegraphed Raymond R. Paty, one of the other two directors, asking whether he concurred in Vogel's telegram. Reply, Paty reported, that the telegram had been sent "without my concurrence or knowledge," Gore said.

The third director, Harry A. Curtis, is on vacation, Gore added.

Earlier Telegram.

In an earlier telegram, Vogel had told Mayor Tobey that the city—Memphis—should agree formally to assume "sole responsibility" for its power supply.

The same phrase was used Friday by James C. Hagerty, presidential press secretary. He said the Administration wanted to be sure there was "proper assurance of responsibility for supplying the power needs of the Memphis area." He went on: "An example of such assurance would be a vote by the mayor and the City Council of Memphis that the city assumes the sole responsibility for providing its own power."

Gore charged that this represented an Administration attempt to "isolate" Memphis as to electric power.

"If Memphis has to build enough generating capacity to supply its peak load, this capacity will be a major part of the time," he said.

He pointed out that any economical power station is integrated with adjoining systems for interchange of electricity to handle peak loads and shutdowns of generating units for maintenance and repairs.

Would Like to Integrate.

Mayor Tobey, asked about this point, said:

"Of course we would like to. Continued on Page 3, Column 1."

BUDGET DIRECTOR AND TVA HEAD
TAKE PART IN BRIEF MEETINGCity Official Asserts Memphis Will Not Agree Never to Integrate With TVA Power System.

By RICHARD DUDMAN
A Washington Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 11—Mayor Frank Tobey of Memphis, Tenn., went into conference today with Attorney General Herbert Brownell on the political explosive Dixon-Yates controversy.

After conferring for 45 minutes Tobey and Brownell went to the White House to talk with President Eisenhower. They declined to say anything about what has gone on in their meeting.

Plans of Memphis to build its own power plant have become a key point in the fight.

Accompanying the mayor to the conference was Thomas H. Allen, chairman of the Memphis power board. Also attending the meeting in Brownell's office were Budget Director Roland W. Hughes, Brig. Gen. Herbert H. Vogel, chairman of the Tennessee Valley Authority, and Raymond Paty, TVA board member.

Invited by TVA Head.

Tobey and Allen, who arrived in Washington last night, said they had been invited to the conference by Vogel. Hughes and Brownell have been ordered by President Eisenhower to re-study the Dixon-Yates contract.

The President had said last Wednesday that he wanted to make certain of the "feasibility" of Memphis's plans to build its own power plant before cancelling the contract. He had ordered a new study of the matter after being told by the Tennessee Valley Authority that TVA would have no use for Dixon-Yates power if Memphis built its own plant.

Contents of a telegram from Vogel to Mayor Tobey last week were disclosed today by Senator Albert Gore (Dem.) of Tennessee, a leading opponent of the Dixon-Yates project to feed private power into the TVA system at Memphis.

Three Things 'Desired.'

The telegram said it was "desired" that the Memphis City Commission direct the Light Gas and Water Division to purchase a site for construction of a plant; sign contracts for construction of a plant, and issue such securities as necessary to obtain funds to build the plant.

FEDERAL FISCAL EXPERTS CALLED IN FOR VIEWS ON ROAD PROGRAM

Treasury and Tax Men Witnesses Before House Group on Financing of Proposed Highway Network.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—The House Public Works committee called on the Administration's fiscal experts today for their views on a subcommittee's plan for financing a multibillion-dollar road-building program.

Representatives of the Treasury Department and the Internal Revenue Service were scheduled to testify before the committee after the subcommittee, headed by Representative George H. Fallon (Dem., N.Y.), formally presents its views to the parent group.

In advance of the hearing, two committee Republicans—Representatives George A. Dondero of Michigan and Russell V. Mack of Washington—said they had taken up the matter with Secretary of Treasury George M. Humphrey and that he found the subcommittee's plan entirely satisfactory to the Treasury.

Subcommittee's Plan. The Fallon subcommittee last Friday proposed that the federal government pay for an expanded federal road-building program through an increase in "user" taxes and through direct appropriations.

In so doing, the group rejected completely President Eisenhower's proposal that the program be financed by non-treasury bonds. Under the subcommittee's plan, a 39-billion-dollar federal-state program would be supplemented by local construction to bring the total to 101 billions. The Administration's program would take 10 years to complete.

The Senate rejected this proposal in favor of an 18-billion-dollar five-year program financed completely by appropriations from the Treasury.

In casting both proposals aside, the Fallon subcommittee came up with a federal-state program of 12 years duration to cost 47 billions.

Of this total, subcommittee sources said, some 32 billions of the cost would be financed by the Federal Government. Higher taxes would account for about $12,500,000,000 to 13 billions of the outlay, with the remaining 19 billions financed by direct appropriations.

First Witnesses. Spokesmen for the trucking, air transport and rubber industries were the first witnesses today.

Representative William H. Ayres (Rep., Ohio), appearing on behalf of rubber industries in his district, denounced as "drastic" the proposed 10-cent per pound tax hike on heavy-duty truck tires.

William A. Bresnahan, assistant general manager, said the American Trucking Association would prefer no highway bill at all to one including the present tax. Motorists would pay only a penny a gallon more, he said, while truckers would pay 4 cents extra on fuel, plus increases on tires, tubes and replacement trucks.

Representative Gordon H. Scherer (Rep., Ohio), noted there is "uncontradicted" testimony that truckers would save four cents a mile in operating costs if the new highways are built. "I'd like to contradict that right now," Bresnahan said. "Those estimates are theoretical... and are based on time saved."

S. G. Tipton, general counsel for the Air Transport Association, said the 1-cent increase in gasoline taxes is "unfair and inequitable." He suggested that the committee limit the hike to actual users of the highway.

Five members of the tax-writing Ways and Means Committee sat in at the hearing as observers with the right to ask questions but not to vote. Representative Richard M. Simpson (Rep., Pennsylvania), announced for himself and Representative Thomas A. Jenkins (Rep., Ohio), that the whole matter should have been handled by the Ways and Means Committee.

The Senate today approved and sent to the White House a $2,360,330,000 compromise bill authorizing construction at military bases around the world.

DRIVER FINED $170, GETS 10-DAY TERM

Pleads Guilty to 7 Charges; Tried to Elude Police in Chase.

Richard E. Frisby, 20 years old, 4325 Rosewood avenue, Pine Lawn, was sentenced to 10 days in the Workhouse and fined $170 today by Provisional City Judge John S. Gollub after he pleaded guilty to seven traffic charges resulting from a June 23 police chase.

Frisby has received a total of $90 in fines in four previous court appearances on traffic charges, and attended traffic school for four weeks last year while on probation for a speeding violation.

Police spotted Frisby driving at high speed June 23 on Goodfellow boulevard at Natural Bridge avenue. In an attempt to elude them, he turned west and zig-zagged through side streets and alleys, with his lights off, at a speed of 45 miles an hour until the chase halted in a dead end.

O. B. Everett, 31, 1402 South Vandeventer avenue, was fined $175 and costs by Police Judge Robert Dowd on charges of careless driving, leaving the scene of an accident and driving when intoxicated. His driver's license was suspended for 90 days.

Police said Everett, who pleaded not guilty, struck a parked car on South Vandeventer avenue near Boys avenue Saturday and then walked away from his own car.

Joe Stuckey, 26, of Spring Hill, Ala., was fined $20 for careless driving and $100 for driving when intoxicated by Judge Dowd. He pleaded not guilty. Police said Stuckey violated a major stop at Broadway and Chouteau avenue July 8, striking a bus on Chouteau which in turn struck another car.

$4000 FIRE LOSS REPORTED AT STAMP AND COIN FIRM

A fire at the Morton Stamp and Coin Co., 912 Pine street, yesterday caused damage estimated by firemen at $4000. An undetermined quantity of foreign postage stamps was washed into the street, and grabbed up by persons who happened to be in the vicinity.

The cause of the fire was not determined. It started at 11:30 a.m., and was confined to the ground floor of a six-story building. The owner, Leonard M. Morton, said the more valuable stamps were in a safe.

A fireman, Capt. Russell Eng of Engine company 6, was cut on the right hand by flying glass.

REAL FIRE TRUCK, 1920 MODEL, TO BE CHILDREN'S 'TOY'

An old hook and ladder fire truck was turned over to the city park division today for installation in a park where children can play on it.

The truck, an obsolete, 1920 model, was retired from service recently. Joseph P. Sestic, director of public safety, said the fire department could find no buyer for the vehicle and was confronted either with selling it for junk or giving children an opportunity to play fireman with it.

If the youngsters use it often, other pieces of equipment will follow, Sestic said. Final determination as to where the truck will be placed has not been made. Lest the children's games become too realistic, the engine will be disabled, the tires removed and the ladders permanently attached.

MAN UNDER SENTENCE TO WORKHOUSE ESCAPES

Stanley Ryker, one of a group of prisoners awaiting transportation to the city workhouse, escaped from custody of deputy marshals in a first-floor corridor of the Municipal Courts building today.

Deputy Marshal Arthur Koshowsky said Ryker, who lives in the 500 block of Chestnut street, apparently wriggled under a gate which confine the prisoners to a section of the corridor. Ryker, 41 years old, was wearing a straw hat, white shirt and dark trousers.

He had just been fined $150 on a loitering charge by Provisional Police Judge John S. Gollub and was unable to pay the fine. Police testified they arrested him last Friday after receiving several complaints he had been selling spurious jewelry to service men in the vicinity of Seventh street and Broadway.

ADmits FATAL STABBING OF MAN IN DICE GAME FIGHT

A man who said he was Jesse Harris, a laborer, of the 2700 block of Clark avenue, today admitted the fatal stabbing of Leonard Jones, 2622 Spruce street, police reported.

Harris, a Negro, told police that he, Jones and two other persons were playing a dice game in Jones's basement Saturday when the two had a dispute over Jones's refusal to pay Harris his winnings. Harris said he stabbed Jones after the latter attacked him with a beer bottle. Jones, also a Negro, died yesterday at Homer G. Phillips Hospital of a stab wound of the abdomen. He was 30 years old.

A fireman, Capt. Russell Eng of Engine company 6, was cut on the right hand by flying glass.

21 ST. LOUIS AREA SPONSORS FOR REFUGEES

Homeless Persons From Germany and Austria Due to Land in U.S. Tomorrow.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 11—Twenty-one St. Louis area residents are sponsoring refugees scheduled to reach the United States tomorrow on the Navy transport, Gen. W. C. Langfitt, the State Department announced.

The ship, carrying more than 1200 refugees who have received visas to this country under the refugee relief program, will dock at New York.

The refugees, who had been living in Germany and Austria, are the first of 10 groups of homeless persons scheduled to come to the United States this year on all-refugee ships. Other refugees have been entering this country by air and on commercial ocean liners.

Sponsorship Requirement. Under the Refugee Relief Act of 1953, refugees seeking to come to be sponsored by American citizens who assure them jobs and housing, so that the newcomers will not become public charges. Citizens in 30 states are sponsoring the group arriving tomorrow.

The State Department said 37,642 visas for refugees and relatives of American citizens have been issued as of July 1. A 50 per cent increase over the number as of the first of this year. However, more sponsors are needed of 214,000 refugees are to enter this country by 1956, as provided under the program, the department statement added.

The ship was chartered by the intergovernmental Committee for European Migration, which arranges for transportation of refugees requiring ocean-going accommodations.

A total of 64 refugees are being sponsored by the 21 St. Louisans. In 61 instances, the sponsorships were endorsed by the National Catholic Welfare Conference, with the other three being endorsed by the National Lutheran Council.

Names of Area Sponsors. Names and addresses of the St. Louis area sponsors, as listed by the State Department:

Joseph F. Dresner, 1915a South Twelfth street; Steve Stutz, 923 Geyer avenue; Andrew Roncsek, 4266 Clarence avenue; Rudy Bruder, 3901 Keokuk street; Nick Holzinger, 521a Jamieson avenue; Mrs. Peter Schmidt, 6506 Donahue street; Adam M. Laub, 920 Russell boulevard; Jacob A. Karl, 7335 Wisconsin avenue; Nickolas Potje, 3147a Mernace street; Ignatius J. Cindrick, 2620a Chouteau avenue; Ted Orsheim, 1316 North Fourteenth street; Martin Giesinger, 3521 Tennessee avenue; Michael J. Mesmer, 1039 Victor street; Mike Hummel, 3629 Hydraulic avenue; F. Stilling, 3517 Caroline street.

Michael Boland, St. James Orphan's Home; Elizabeth Maney, 4406 South Spring avenue; Dr. Leo M. Shanley, 5 Glen Forest, St. Louis county; Ernest A. Beck, 60 St. Nicholas Lane, Florissant; and Martin Rosmanitz, 7801 Elton avenue.

Snake is SHOT AS IT INVADES BIRDHOUSE IN TREE

The snake, which has had a bad reputation since the days of the Reputation of Eden, added another black mark to its name today by shattering the tranquility of a birdhouse which Mrs. Ben Calola, of Chesterfield, established seven years ago in a maple tree in her front yard.

Mrs. Calola was awakened at 6:30 a.m. by the chattering of bluebirds and sparrows in the house. When she investigated, she found that a three-foot-six-inch snake was the cause of the trouble. The snake had climbed five feet up the tree to the birdhouse and swallowed three baby bluebirds which were in a nest there.

Mrs. Calola's husband, a St. Louis county building inspector, shot the culprit with a 22-caliber rifle. The identity of the snake was not definitely established, although officials at the St. Louis Zoo said a number of varieties include birds in their diet. And instances of snakes climbing trees—and even utility poles—are frequent, Zoo officials said. Mrs. Calola planned to take the dead snake to the Zoo later in the day for positive identification.

$311,423 TAXES SOUGHT FROM FIRM AND HEAD

Court Opinion Names Ashley Milk Co., D. W. Dawkins—'Fraud' Charged.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, July 11—Federal income and excess profits taxes and penalties totalling $311,423 are being sought by the Government from the Ashley Milk Co. of St. Louis and its president, D. W. Dawkins, it was disclosed today in an opinion by the tax court of the United States.

Subject to adjustment, the opinion indicated the court would assess Dawkins and the milk company $241,988 in back taxes and penalties for the years 1942, 1943, 1944 and 1946.

However, the opinion was entered pursuant to rule 50, under which amounts still in dispute will be recomputed by attorneys for both sides. No final determination of the amount owed was made by the court.

The court found that a part of the tax deficiencies for the four years "was due to fraud with intent to evade tax."

Concealment Charged. Evidence in the case, the opinion said, "discloses, without doubt, a deliberate purpose of Dawkins to conceal corporate sales and distributions on his stock, with intent to evade income taxes."

The Government charged that Dawkins diverted corporate income to his own use, without reporting it either as personal or corporate income. The tax court upheld this contention, stating:

"The income tax returns filed by Dawkins and the corporation for each of the years 1942, 1943, 1944 and 1946 were false and fraudulent with intent to evade tax, and a part of the deficiency determined against the petitioners in each of those years was due to fraud with intent to evade tax."

The Government charged that Dawkins, who owned 7705 Country Club Court, Clayton, had income tax deficiencies of $107,731 in the five-year period from 1942 through 1946. Penalties totalling $53,865 were sought.

Income and excess profits taxes sought from the company for the same five-year period totaled $56,102, with penalties of $82,842. The company has offices at 4424 West Papin street.

Claim Disallowed. In its opinion, the court disallowed the government's claim that the company failed to report $27,810 in sales in 1944 and $31,737 in 1945. The Government had estimated the alleged unreported income using the net worth method.

Other changes in the Government claim will make it necessary for the deficiencies and penalties to be recomputed by attorneys of the Internal Revenue Service, Dawkins and the company, the court held.

WISCONSIN BOARD OK'S SALK SHOTS AND URGES USE

MADISON, Wis., July 11 (AP)—The state vaccine advisory committee last night expressed confidence in the safety of the Salk polio vaccine and recommended that first shots be given Wisconsin children as supplies of vaccine become available.

A statement by the committee said that "from information available to the medical, nursing and pharmaceutical members of the committee, we find no contraindications to administration of the Salk vaccine as soon as available to children in good health who have not had household contact with active cases."

The committee of 17 persons also recommended that for administrative reasons the areas which had given first shots delay the second until after school resumes this fall.

Vaccine for first- and second-graders was provided by the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

The committee recommended that physicians give individual consideration to continuing or beginning inoculations in areas with "a high epidemic prevalence."

The company, founded in 1931 by Dawkins, his wife, and two other persons, manufactures powdered, sweet and sour milk, ice cream mix and other dairy products. In 1944, it was charged with violating the price control act by selling milk above OPA prices and was fined $2621 under a consent judgment.

CITY SIMPLIFIES EARNINGS TAX REQUIREMENTS

A requirement that employers list the names and earnings of each employee in earnings tax returns was dropped by city authorities today, in response to complaints by employers.

Instead, employers need report only the number of employees, the total amount of wages paid and the amount of tax withheld. Collector of Revenue Del Bannister and City Counselor Samuel H. Liberman conferred on the matter today and announced that the simpler method would be tried, effective with the return due July 31.

FIVE-YEAR TERM FOR WHOLESALE HEROIN DEALER

John H. Butler, Alleged Source of One Fourth of Sales Here, Sentenced to U.S. Prison.

John H. Butler, described by federal authorities as the source of one fourth of the heroin sales in St. Louis, was sentenced today to a five-year term in federal prison by United States District Judge George H. Moore.

Butler, 34 years old, a Negro, pleaded guilty last Tuesday to four charges of selling the drug and two charges of possessing it. The Government alleged he sold 635 grains of heroin from November 1954 to the time of his arrest early last month, when he had 359 grains in his possession.

Assistant United States Attorney Herbert H. Freer told the court that narcotics agents have long regarded Butler as one of the biggest dealers selling in quantity lots to smaller peddlers here.

'Beyond Cleaning Up.' Butler's attorney, Frank W. Clegg, told the court that the narcotics situation in St. Louis "is getting beyond cleaning up."

Clegg went on to say he had asked that action on Butler's case be delayed until September so he would have time to "report on the conditions to the court."

"Do you want to get yourself killed?" Judge Moore asked. "I don't mind that, your honor," Clegg replied.

Clegg, a Negro, told Judge Moore that he thought if Butler had been doing such a large business, he would have been brought into court before now.

Freer said that Butler had been known to be "a substantial dealer" for four years. A narcotics bureau agent, called to the stand by Judge Moore, said that the agency had been unable to prosecute Butler earlier because no witness was available.

Named 'Source' in Chicago. Clegg told Judge Moore that Butler had been co-operative with the authorities and had named his "source" in Chicago. Freer interjected that Butler had also tipped off the "source," which Butler quickly denied.

Butler was sentenced to five years on each of the six counts, the sentences to run concurrently. He was fined only a nominal $1 on each count. The maximum penalty is $2000 and five years in prison on each charge.

Capt. C. R. Oliver, commanding officer of the troop, said today.

Troop C operates in 10 counties. "These accidents could have been prevented by the drivers reducing their speed for traffic, road and weather conditions," Capt. Oliver said. He declared many drivers "continue to blame the weather for accidents. The weather did not cause these accidents. They were caused by the drivers failing to realize they must reduce their speed on a wet road. The reason for increasing speed is that any moisture or even dirt or sand on the roadway greatly reduces the traction of the tires."

ANDERSON QUILTS AS NO. 2 MAN IN DEPT. OF DEFENSE

Reuben Robertson Jr., Paper Mill Executive, Says He Has Been Offered the Post.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (UP)—President Eisenhower today accepted "with the greatest reluctance" the resignation of Robert B. Anderson as deputy defense secretary.

The White House said Anderson will step down about Aug. 15 and that the President probably will name his successor before Congress adjourns.

Murray Snyder, assistant White House press secretary, declined to say, however, whether Mr. Eisenhower has already made a choice.

In Asheville, N.C., last week, Reuben Robertson Jr., president of Champion Paper and Fibre Co., Hamilton, O., said he had been offered and "is seriously considering" the post of Deputy Defense Secretary. But some problems involving company affairs still must be worked out, he said.

Anderson's decision to resign was disclosed recently by Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson. It was made official today when the White House made public an exchange of letters between the President and Anderson.

In his letter, dated July 11, Mr. Eisenhower said he accepted the resignation with the greatest reluctance because of Anderson's outstanding service to the nation first as Navy Secretary and then as Deputy Defense Secretary.

The President praised Anderson for "a selfless devotion to duty," "keen judgment" and "exceptional ability for carrying projects through to completion."

GENERAL CABLE TO CLOSE DUE TO LACK OF COPPER

The General Cable Corp., 5043 Farlin avenue, with 650 employees, will be forced to close Friday because of lack of supplies due to the strike of western copper miners, it was learned today.

C. W. Potter, manager, said his firm obtains copper from the Kennecott Copper Corp., one of the "big four" producers closed by the wage dispute. Settlement of the strike at this late date would not avert the layoff, Potter added.

The miners, members of the independent Mine, Mill & Smelter Workers, are demanding a wage increase of 20 cents an hour, plus fringe benefits. Negotiations have thus far failed to effect a settlement.

RED CHINA 'HELL' SAY 3 RELEASED U.S. TURNCOATS

When they crossed the border into Hong Kong yesterday they seemed happy and cheerful. They were held temporarily by the British as "prohibited immigrants" until it had been determined by the United States consulate that they had not given up their American citizenship. They still wore their ill-fitting Communist-supplied clothes when they appeared at the consulate this morning to sign necessary legal papers before they sailed. But the British Red Cross provided them with used but better-fitting wardrobes for the trip home.

The American consulate paid for their passage and hotel room here, but the three turncoats signed promissory notes to repay the money when they returned. Cowart, who did most of the talking for the three at a press conference here last night, continued to act as though he were running the show today.

When a reporter met the three at the consulate this morning he asked them if they would answer some questions. Bell and Griggs looked as though they were willing to cooperate. They started to say something, but were cut off by Cowart, who snapped: "We have nothing to say."

Go to Dance Hall. Last night he broke up an hour-long press conference at their hotel with a brusque announcement that they had "important business" to complete. Thirty minutes later they arrived at the Blue Sky ballroom, one of the most popular dance halls in Hong Kong. They stayed there drinking and dancing until 2 a.m., when they returned to their hotel.

During the press conference, the three gave what they said were their reasons for refusing repatriation. They all said they were disappointed at what they found in Red China.

Cowart said it would "take several volumes" to tell what happened in China. He said: "When asked why he had decided to stay in Red China, he replied: 'A child decided not to come home; a man decided to go home.'"

Denounce Communism. He said he had "never accepted Communism" and added that all had experiences which proved that the free world was better than Communism.

"We would welcome Hitler back rather than have Communism," he said.

He said he stayed with the Reds because of his fear of "political persecution." Commenting on his experiences under the Peiping regime, Cowart said that "the places in China which the world does not see can only be described as hell."

Griggs said he was "just a poor fool" for having refused repatriation in the first place. He said he now was "facing reality" and was "proud to be an American—I am going back to my country."

Bell said the people of China "hate Communism," but they also "hate Chiang Kai-shek." They were among 23 American prisoners of war who originally elected to stay in Red China rather than return to the United States. Two, Edward S. Dickinson, of Crackers Neck, Va., and Claude J. Batchelor, of Kermit, Tex., returned to United States custody last year and were tried and convicted of collaboration with the enemy. Batchelor was sentenced to 20 years' imprisonment, Dickinson to 10 years.

Red China announced in June that another of the original 23, Rufus O. Douglas, of San Angelo, Tex., had died of a "rheumatic heart disorder with complications."

By the Associated Press.

Trials Likely. The United States Government has not indicated what is in store for the three, except to say that they will "be responsible for any acts they might have committed."

Because all three and 17 other former prisoners of war still in China have been given dishonorable discharges, Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson said last month he did not think the three returning would be tried by court-martial. Presumably they may face civil courts.

Griggs told a news conference last night "others want to come out" of Red China but he would not name them. The Chinese, in announcing that the three Americans and two Belgians would be turned loose, said any of the others could leave if they desired.

The Peiping radio announced last night that the two Belgians, Roger Devriendt and Louis Verdyk, would be released as soon as arrangements were completed with the Indian Red Cross. The broadcast said Devriendt wants to go to the United States and Verdyk to Laos, in Indochina.

said by the Eisenhower Administration to turn the national economy over to power interests and big investment bankers and said it will have a "much greater effect" in the 1956 election campaign than it did in 1954.

Kefauver, unsuccessful candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1952, said he is "not now a candidate" for the 1956 nomination and has "no present plans" for seeking it.

But he said if Democrats should select him to run after looking over the field, "of course, I'd be happy to make the effort."

power used in federal atomic factories.

Kefauver said it was the first time a United States President ever ordered an independent government agency against the vote of its directors to negotiate a contract with two individuals.

Looks for Heads to Roll.

"If the President did not know what he was doing, it's just a bad thing," Kefauver said. He added if facts were withheld from the President by AEC chairman Lewis L. Strauss, Budget Director Rowland R. Hughes and others, "we should look for a lot of heads to roll."

"But if heads don't roll and something is not done about the people under the President, we can only conclude the President knew about it and wanted it done," Kefauver asserted.

He was reminded he had said in an earlier Senate speech there were "indications" of a criminal violation in Wenzell's role in the contract. Testimony before Kefauver's committee last week brought out that Wenzell, former official of the First Boston Corp., New York investment banking firm, advised the Government on aspects of the Dixon-Yates as a consultant to the President's Budget Bureau in 1954.

The President told his Press conference he considered the part played by Wenzell as proper. The White House has contended that Wenzell did not influence negotiations for the contract.

Fee Waived.

First Boston later arranged the financing for the Dixon-Yates contract. It waived its usual fee for the job, partly because of possible criticism of Wenzell's "dual role," according to testimony of First Boston officers.

Asked about the criminal possibilities, Kefauver said there are "stronger indications now that the criminal code was violated by Mr. Wenzell than when I made the speech."

"The code says persons can't serve the government and their own corporation at the same time," the Senator said. "It is now clear Wenzell arranged the contract while advising the government. A violation is indicated. We will continue the investigation."

Griggs said he was "just a poor fool" for having refused repatriation in the first place. He said he now was "facing reality" and was "proud to be an American—I am going back to my country."

igation and make a final recommendation.

Kefauver charged that Wenzell, while advising the Government, made a report "for the purpose of dismembering" TVA and while about it "got business for his First Boston Corp."

"If he can dismember TVA and public power, First Boston, the No. 1 Wall Street dealer in utility stocks, will stand to gain tremendously . . . all the stocks and bonds in that area," the Senator said.

Charges Concealment.

"And they (the Administration) concealed it all. It was all kept in the dark. It was an operation for the destruction of TVA behind the back of TVA in direct violation of the President's campaign promises."

Kefauver repeated his subcommittee's unanimous stand last week that the Government should refuse to pay contract cancellation costs to Dixon-Yates if the contract is called off. Mr. Eisenhower has said he will cancel the contract if assured Memphis can and will build its own power plant as the city has announced it will do. Memphis would have used a large share of Dixon-Yates power.

The Senator said that what he called the "axis" of Dixon-Yates, First Boston, the Budget Bureau and the AEC went into the deal with "unclean hands" and "rigged a scandalous contract negotiated in secrecy . . ."

"I don't think they are entitled to any compensation," he declared. "I don't think the taxpayers of America ought to be saddled with the cost of it."

Gore's Plans.

Senator Albert Gore (Dem., Tennessee), another Dixon-Yates critic, said he will try to make the controversial power plan an important issue in the 1956 campaign.

Appearing on the CBS radio program "Face the Nation," Gore listed as other important campaign issues "the tie-up between the Eisenhower Administration and big money" and "the partnership between the Administration and the power trust."

Gore declined to be drawn out on whether he himself may be a vice presidential candidate. He refused to say whether he would take the nomination if offered, terming the question "iffy."

Calling the Dixon-Yates contract "a fiasco from beginning to end," with "unsavory characteristics," Gore criticized the Administration for using the Federal Bureau of Investigation to get information from Memphis officials about their plans for building a city power plant.

Gore said the primary functions of the FBI are the apprehension of criminals and guarding the nation's security and a steam plant in Memphis is not included in either one.

Gore also criticized President Eisenhower's support of Wenzell. "The President's idea of propriety differs from mine," Gore said.

To the suggestion that the President may not have been fully informed of Wenzell's part in the negotiations, Gore said Mr. Eisenhower has "repeatedly defended" the contract.

"He has repeatedly branded those of us who oppose it as playing politics," Gore said. "I cannot excuse the President on the basis of ignorance."

integrate with TVA, but if we can't we are going ahead with construction of our plant just the same.

"And the time is coming when we will integrate. This group here is not elected to office indefinitely, you know."

Mayor Tobey said it was obvious to him that the Administration would like to have Memphis commit itself never to integrate with TVA.

"We are not going to do that," he said.

The Mayor said purchase of a site and signing of contracts would be impossible until engineering studies had been completed for selection of a site.

"We have 35 to 40 miles of river front to examine," he said. "If we have selected our site in a year's time, it will be fast work."

Hearings Resumed.

Meanwhile, the Senate Antimonopoly subcommittee resumed its hearings at the Capitol on the contract.

Chairman Kefauver (Dem., Tennessee), said the subcommittee tee is going to try to find out why the Securities and Exchange Commission briefly suspended hearings on the Dixon-Yates financing plans.

Kefauver said the subcommittee will question SEC Chairman J. S. Armstrong "at length" on this matter beginning tomorrow.

Kefauver read into the record a letter he wrote Armstrong June 27 asking why the SEC inquired on Dixon-Yates financing was canceled June 13 "without notice or explanation," then resumed June 16—"still with no explanation."

"I should like to inquire from you," Kefauver told Armstrong, "whether any request or representation was made to the commission with respect to the suspension of the hearings."

Kefauver prepared to continue questioning this afternoon of Adolphe H. Wenzell, whom he has accused of "serving two masters" in the Dixon-Yates negotiations.

Banking Firm Officer.

Wenzell until last June 1 was a vice president and director of First Boston Corp., a New York investment banking firm which arranged $120,000,000 in debt financing for the Dixon-Yates project. First Boston acted as agent, at no fee, for the Dixon-Yates holding company syndicate, comprising Middle South Utilities, Inc., and the Southern Co.

Wenzell also was an unpaid consultant for the Bureau of the Budget before and during the early Dixon-Yates negotiations. It was disclosed Saturday that he had proposed in September 1953, in a report for the Budget Bureau, that TVA's power facilities be turned over to a privately-financed corporation. An alternative proposal was essentially the same as the Dixon-Yates arrangement, on which negotiations began three months later.

Senator Clinton P. Anderson (Dem., New Mexico), said the Joint Congressional Atomic Energy Committee would move back into the dispute Wednesday if the power contract has not been canceled by then. Anderson is chairman of the committee.

Anderson also said the AEC refused to cancel the contract by a 2-1 vote about 10 days ago. The time element would place the action before the President ordered the contracts review but after Memphis announced its decision to go ahead with its own plant.

East Arkansas Threatens Break With Memphis.

WEST MEMPHIS, Ark., July 11 (UP)—Delegates from 33 East Arkansas communities have adopted a resolution threatening to "terminate (our) happy relations" with Memphis, Tenn., unless the city stops fighting the Dixon-Yates power plant now under construction near West Memphis.

Gov. Orval E. Faubus joined with his political opponent of last summer, former Gov. Francis Cherry, in supporting the stand of the communities against Memphis.

"We have been a part of the Memphis trade territory and have been your customers," the delegates said in a resolution addressed to the city across the Mississippi river. "Our relations have been pleasant and mutually beneficial through many years."

"The actions of your city officials and newspapers, their unfair attack on the state of Arkansas, their selfish and deliberate distortion of facts in this matter, are to blame for this unhappy situation."

Memphis's decision to build its own power plant rather than buy power from the privately constructed Dixon-Yates plant prompted President Eisenhower to call for a restudy of the need for the Dixon-Yates project.

Gov. Faubus, in a blistering telegram to Mr. Eisenhower, said the President's "indecision regarding construction of the Dixon-Yates plant is in high disfavor with this area."

Ex-Unionist Frank Duffy Dies. INDIANAPOLIS, July 11 (AP)—Frank Duffy, Carpenters' Union vice president of the American Federation of Labor from 1913 to 1950, died today. He was 94 years old. He nominated Samuel Gompers and William Green to head the federation.

BONN ARMY BILL DUE TO PASS IN TIME FOR GENEVA

Adenauer Wants to Show Big 4 That Germany Is Loyal to Paris Treaties.

By GASTON COBLENTZ

THE NEW YORK TIMES writes from Bonn: "The Bonn government is determined to pass the army bill in time for the Geneva conference next Monday."

He has placed great emphasis on this timing. He regards the Bundestag's approval of the military bills as an important international demonstration that Bonn is definitely going ahead without delay with its rearmament in the Western alliance.

He wanted to make this clear both to the East and West before the Geneva conference began, for the dual purpose of strengthening the Western camp and removing any doubts in any quarter about West Germany's loyalty to the Paris treaties.

In other words, he wanted to deprive Soviet Premier Bulganin of an opportunity to arrive in Switzerland and say to the Western leaders: "You see, the West Germans don't really want to go ahead with their treaties with you."

Bills of Limited Scope.
Despite the fact that the first military bills have thus become a matter of great symbolic importance to Adenauer, they are, in reality, of limited scope.

The Chancellor's emphasis on speed was one of the main reasons for his presenting to the Parliament last month a remarkably brief three-paragraph "Volunteers" bill to get the rearmament ball rolling.

He said he only wanted to call up 6000 volunteers, but the bill placed no specific limits on the number, or on how the men could be used. It carried no special provisions for parliamentary control of the new army.

It caused the greatest parliamentary rebellion against Adenauer since he came to power six years ago.

In order to drive the bill through in time for the Geneva conference, Adenauer has had to concede amendment after amendment at the insistence not only of his Social Democratic opposition, but of his own coalition allies and even of a substantial block of dissatisfied members of his own Christian Democratic party.

Principal Changes.
Here are some of the main changes that emerged in semi-final form this weekend:

Instead of reviving a blank check, the Chancellor will be specifically limited to recruiting 6000 volunteers.

He is expressly forbidden to put even this tiny nucleus of men into any military formations. They are to be used only for appointments to international staffs in the Western alliance, for study courses, for preparation of future military installations, for technical assignments by the Defense Ministry, and so on.

The law is valid only until next March, and will then have to be replaced by a full-fledged body of military legislation.

Another change in Adenauer's volunteers bill was the elimination of the proposed soldiers' oath. The soldiers' oath was a deeply-enshrined German military tradition which Hitler succeeded in perverting into an oath of allegiance to himself.

The revised volunteers bill provides only for a written declaration by Germany's new soldiers that they undertake to protect the West German constitution and to fulfill their duties conscientiously.

Screening Provided.
One of the most important changes in the proposed bill is a new provision that a civilian committee must be set up to screen the generals and colonels before confirmation of their appointments by the government. The Chancellor's original bill made no mention of such a committee.

The Parliament's aim in setting up this body is to prevent the infiltration of the new army by former senior German officers whose past records are particularly notorious, or who may still have Nazi or aggressively nationalist ideas, or whose conduct since the war may have indicated that they hold the present democratic state in contempt.

Almost the only issue that is still undecided is whether the men the government appoints for the screening committee must be approved by the Bundestag before their names are formally submitted to President Theodor Heuss. Adenauer regards this demand by the Social Democrats as an encroachment by the legislature on the executive branch.

The expectation now is that the final vote on the volunteers bill will be taken by next Saturday night.

If necessary, the government is also expected to present its candidates for the screening committee to the Bundestag this week, so that the progress of appointing generals and colonels can begin immediately.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The Senate today confirmed the nomination of Wilber M. Brucker to be Secretary of the Army. It acted on a voice vote.

STEVENSON LIKELY TO LEAVE HOSPITAL IN CHICAGO TODAY

LAKE FOREST, Ill., July 11 (AP)—Adlai Stevenson's physicians say he probably will be discharged from Lake Forest Hospital today after a bout with what they described as bronchial pneumonia.

The Democratic nominee for President in 1952 was suffering from a severe cold when he spoke at the annual National Education Association convention in Chicago last Wednesday.

His physicians say that Stevenson will have to rest at his home for another week or 10 days. He lives on a farm near Libertyville, Ill.

MOTHER, 6 CHILDREN, NIECE SWEEPED TO DEATH IN SURF

NAIRN, Scotland, July 11 (AP)—A Scottish mother, her six young children and a niece were swept to death by a surging tide as they paddled in the surf off a picnic beach near here last night. Six bodies were recovered by police today.

The dead are Mrs. Isabella McIntosh, 33, of Birch Cottage near Nairn, her six children—Isabel, 12, George, 9, Rose, 8, Donald, 5, Shena, 4, Ann 2—and her 18-year-old niece, Shena MacDonald.

Mrs. McIntosh's husband, John, 46, a forestry worker, stayed behind among some sand dunes to make tea and prepare a picnic meal while the rest of the party went paddling at the water's edge.

MAN KILLED AS AUTO PLUNGES OFF ROAD

Car Strikes Tree Beside U.S. Highway 67 in St. Louis County.

James R. Koerper, 2566W. Dodier street, was killed today when the automobile he was driving plunged down an embankment and struck a tree beside U.S. Highway 67 about 600 feet south of Coldwater creek. Koerper, a draftsman, was 22 years old.

St. Louis county police reported the automobile went 288 feet after leaving the highway before striking the tree. The tree was 100 feet from the center of the highway. A towing service was called to remove the body from the car.

The engines was found 25 feet from the automobile, and the radiator and two front fenders were found 30 feet from the point of impact.

They were taken immediately to Koolman railway station and placed aboard a train under Hong Kong police escort for the trip to the border.

NO MIRACLES IN WORLD PEACE, NEHRU WARNS

But Indian Prime Minister, On Way Home, Thinks Turning Point Has Been Reached.

CAIRO, July 11 (AP)—India's Prime Minister Nehru said today he believes world peace will come gradually "but we do not expect miracles."

In one of a series of statements at stopovers en route home from his European visit, Nehru told reporters world leaders must use "a mixture of formal and informal methods" in seeking peace.

"Peace may come gradually, and in the past five months there have been indications that there is a lessening of tension, but we do not expect miracles," he said.

Talks With Eden. On leaving London yesterday after lengthy talks with Prime Minister Eden, Nehru expressed confidence prospects for enduring world peace are improving.

"It seems that we have reached a psychological moment of history, a turning away from the tense atmosphere of the so-called cold war toward peace," Nehru said before boarding his plane at a London airport.

He added that he got an impression in Russia, which he visited last month, that the Russians will be prepared to discuss Far Eastern problems at the Big Four conference at Geneva to start July 18.

"They might prefer to talk about the Far East informally," Nehru added.

He said steps were being taken toward lessening tension over Formosa, but did not elaborate.

Undisturbed by Laos Incident. He said he is undisturbed by recent clashes between Communist and non-Communist forces in Laos.

"One should not attach too much importance to such incidents," he said. "I think the commission handling affairs in Laos is functioning very well, and dealing with these incidents from day to day."

Laos, stopping briefly in Duesseldorf, Germany, he told reporters that during his Russian visit he got a "very good" impression of Premier Bulganin and his colleagues.

"Their desire for peace is not only earnest and sincere, but results obviously from the understanding of the absurdity of nuclear war," Nehru said. "No sensible person can want a nuclear war today."

Nehru planned to stay in Egypt one day for conversations with Premier Gamal Abdel Nasser.

SAYS REDS' PRICE IS NEUTRAL REICH

By ERNIE HILL
The Chicago Daily News Post-Dispatch Special: Radio, Copyright 1955

LONDON, July 11—The Soviet Union's price for ending the cold war will be a neutralized Germany.

This in effect is what Prime Minister Nehru of India told Prime Minister Eden during weekend talks at Chequers, it is reported on good authority.

Nehru was joined in his discussions here by V. K. Krishna Menon, his unofficial roving mediator. Menon, coming from Washington, backed Nehru's analysis of the Soviet position.

Like Nehru, he recently visited Moscow.

Nehru and Menon, it is understood, stressed the view that the West must make concessions to Russia if it expects the Kremlin to give ground on other matters.

Nehru and Menon are said to have minimized the Dulles theory that Russia is badly in need of relief from the costs of arms production and over-extension.

Eden is reported to have observed that it would be very difficult to produce a unified and neutralized Germany at this stage of the Western Europe defense plan. He suggested that perhaps an arms limitation program between East and West might be developed.

Sydney News Strike Spreads. SYDNEY, Australia, July 11 (AP)—Editorial employees joined a newspaper printers' strike today, preventing publication of Sydney's two morning newspapers. The three Sunday papers, which are independent of the dailies, failed to appear yesterday and afternoon papers had been struck three days earlier.

CLEMENCY PLEAS DENIED, EX-MODEL WILL BE HANGED

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—An attractive, platinum blonde ex-model, Ruth Ellis, lost her last chance today to escape the gallows for murdering her lover.

The Home Secretary turned down pleas for clemency on behalf of the 28-year-old divorcee.

Her execution was fixed for 9 a.m. (3 a.m. St. Louis time) Wednesday at Holloway prison.

She was resigned to her fate. Friends who visited her in the prison's death row over the weekend said she told them: "I am quite content to die."

Mrs. Ellis, mother of two young children, had refused to appeal personally from the verdict sentencing her to be hanged for shooting 25-year-old racing enthusiast David Blakely, on Easter Sunday. She admitted firing six shots at him with intent to kill in a fit of jealousy after he jilted her.

Home Secretary Gwilym Lloyd-George, who has the final say on recommending royal clemency in capital cases, considered petitions containing more than 2000 signatures urging him to reprieve Mrs. Ellis. He ruled that "there are not sufficient grounds to recommend any interference with the due course of the law."

KARSTEN ASKS U.S. TO STUDY AID TO KINLOCH SCHOOLS

WASHINGTON, July 11—Representative Frank M. Karsten (Dem., St. Louis, today asked the United States Office of Education to study the possibility of giving federal aid to the school district of Kinloch in St. Louis county.

In a letter to Commissioner of Education Samuel M. Brownell, Karsten noted that Kinloch schools recently were removed from the state accredited list.

Two reasons, he said, were insufficient elementary classrooms and inadequate library facilities.

There are more than 1100 pupils in the Kinloch system, Karsten added.

He suggested that Kinloch, most of whose residents are Negroes, might be eligible for federal assistance under the program of aid to school districts affected by defense installations.

Karsten cited the increased number of manufacturing plants with defense contracts in St. Louis county. Federal aid, he added, might enable Kinloch to regain accredited status.

HOUSE ASKED TO RESTORE CUT IN FOREIGN AID

Stassen Says Reduction Will Hamper Program — House Debate Is Opened.

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The House started debate today on a $2,638,741,750 foreign aid money bill with a plea from the Administration to restore sharp cuts imposed by the House Appropriations Committee.

The plea was relayed to Committee Chairman Cannon (Dem., Missouri), by Harold E. Stassen, the President's special assistant on disarmament.

Cannon's committee lopped $627,900,000 from the new cash requested by the President to finance the program of military and economic aid to non-Communist nations for the current fiscal year.

In a letter to Cannon and other House leaders, Stassen said the committee cuts "will seriously hamper the carrying out of the President's mutual security program." Cannon made the letter public.

Stassen said a $420,000,000 cut in military aid proposed by the committee "would result in an inability to fulfill urgent needs in countries where military requirements have been discussed and agreed, and where countries have taken steps to meet commitments on raising forces, granting base rights, etc."

Warns of Consequences. He warned of the possible "serious consequences" of the recommended cut in Asiatic programs.

Despite Stassen's plea, Representative Passman (Dem., Louisiana), floor manager of the bill and chairman of a subcommittee that drafted it, said he believed the House would stage off efforts to amend the legislation.

The House was not expected to reach the voting stage on key amendments until tomorrow.

The bill would supplement $8,717,100,000 in unexpended balances from previous appropriations.

Some members don't think the Appropriations Committee hacked the bill deeply enough, while others contend it has been cut too deeply.

Taber's View. The budget-cutters went into the fray without the services of their usual leader, Representative John Taber of New York.

Taber, senior Republican on the Appropriations Committee, lined up on the other side and told reporters he didn't believe additional big cuts would be justified.

"I think we cut it enough in committee," he said. "It should not be cut much more."

Passman conceded that advocates of further cuts might point to the huge unexpended balance in the aid program fund to justify their claims that less new cash is needed.

The Appropriations Committee itself criticized the program's administrators on grounds of inability to agree on how much remained unobligated when the fiscal year ended June 30. Estimates ranged for $100,000,000 to $932,000,000.

Congress last week authorized new appropriations of $3,285,000,000 for the aid program during the present year, subject to actual appropriations in separate legislation. The President asked Congress to provide $3,266,641,750 in new money.

INQUEST INTO DEATH OF BIOLOGIST IN POND

An inquest will be held tonight in Wentzville in the death of Richard C. Marzolf of Columbia, a Missouri Conservation Commission biologist, who apparently drowned Friday evening when conducting fish experiments in a pond at Weldon Spring.

The body of Marzolf, 28 years old, was recovered late Saturday night from Saw Mill Pond in the August A. Busch Memorial Wildlife area. When found Marzolf still had on the underwater lung, goggles, boots and a belt to which was attached about 40 pounds of weights. The equipment was customarily worn by Marzolf in conducting underwater studies of fish. Rescue workers said a malfunctioning of the equipment may have resulted in his death.

Marzolf had not been scheduled to report to an office in the St. Louis area, and was not missed until he failed to return to his home in Columbia on Saturday. His jeep, with his clothing on the seat, then was found near the pond. He is survived by his wife and four children.

SENATE GROUP APPROVES CONTEMPT CITATIONS FOR 3

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today approved contempt citations against turnabout witness Harvey Matusow, Harry Sacher, New York attorney, and Joseph Starobin, New York writer.

The citations now will be submitted to the full Senate. They originally were voted by the Judiciary Committee's internal security subcommittee.

Matusow appeared as a government witness against numerous persons he identified as Communists and later declared that much of his testimony was false. He was cited for refusal to answer questions at a subcommittee hearing March 1 investigating his turnabout role.

Sacher, who was one of the defense attorneys in the trial of 11 top Communist leaders in 1949, was cited for refusal to answer questions at a hearing last April 19 on cases he has handled. Starobin was cited for refusal to answer questions at the April 19 hearing about Communist party affiliations.

INSTRUMENT LIGHT FAILURE DELAYS AIRLINER'S LANDING

HOUSTON, Tex., July 11 (UPI)—A Pan American Constellation carrying 16 persons hovered over Houston International Airport for an hour and a quarter today unable to land because of uncertainty as to whether the landing wheels were locked down.

The pilot, Capt. K. R. Florio, finally brought the plane down to "bump" the runway once to determine if the wheels were securely locked and then, after circling the field twice, came in for a smooth landing. A defective instrument panel light was the cause of the incident.

TWO STREET ROBBERY SUSPECTS CAPTURED

Caught by Patrolman After Victim Points Them Out.

Two men who Harvey E. Siegler, 1709 East C street, Belleville, said knocked him down and robbed him on a street late Saturday, were caught a few minutes later by Patrolman Edward Pempiller of Central District.

The men, Negroes, said they were T. C. Gaston, 3200 block of Pine street, and Herman Wilson, 3800 block of Pine. They were booked suspected of robbery, but denied robbing Siegler.

Siegler, 46 years old, was walking north on Fourth street when he was stopped by two men who asked him for cigarettes and matches, Siegler told police.

After he had given them cigarettes and had started to walk on, Siegler said, the men seized him from behind and threw him to the sidewalk. They took his wristwatch and his billfold, containing $19.

When Siegler arose, he saw Patrolman Pempiller and hailed him. The officer dashed after the two men, who had slowed to a walk, and arrested them at Fourth and Chouteau avenue. He said the wallet and wristwatch were in their possession.

A safe containing $3000 was stolen from a restaurant and tavern owned by Sam Iaconetti at 6600 Delmar boulevard, University City, police reported today.

Iaconetti said burglars forced a rear door and hauled the safe away sometime between 3 a.m. yesterday and 3:30 a.m. today. He told police he discovered the robbery when he came in to check receipts.

WILLIAM A. STOCK GOES TO PRISON FOR TAX EVASION

William A. Stock, St. Louis undertaker sentenced to six months in prison for federal income tax evasion, was taken to Springfield, Mo., today to begin serving his term.

Federal authorities said Stock will enter either the prison or the federal hospital there. He is 71 years old and is said to be suffering from a heart ailment and high blood pressure.

Stock also was fined $10,000 when sentence was imposed June 17 by United States District Judge Roy W. Harper. He was found guilty of evading $12,624 in taxes for the years 1947 through 1950. Stock's home is at 4397 McPherson avenue. He operates undertaking establishments at 2117 East Grand avenue and at 889 South Brentwood boulevard, Clayton.

WIFE ADMITS POISONING HUSBAND JUST AS SISTER DID

CEDAR CITY, Utah, July 11 (UPI)—A 34-year-old mother of seven children yesterday admitted poisoning her husband, but refused to give a motive to the murder that authorities said resembled a similar crime in which the confessed poisoner's sister took the life of her husband, a brother to the latest victim.

Mrs. Milda H. Ashdown of Cedar City is being held in city-county jail here for the fatal poisoning of her husband, Raymond Ashdown. The victim's brother, Vivian, had been poisoned six years ago by his wife, Mrs. Elizabeth Lottie Lacey, who is a sister to Mrs. Ashdown. Mrs. Ashdown's earlier confession that she put some strychnine in her husband's lemonade has served to add a striking parallel to the strange case. Mrs. Ashdown's sister poisoned her husband with strychnine also.

How many of these good friends of yours can you name?

JUST FOR FUN, jot down on this page the names of the freight cars pictured here that you recognize. Only ten types are shown—but we have more. Why so many? Because the railroads carry anything, any time, anywhere. So our equipment is "tailor-made" to handle all kinds of shipments in the best, most efficient manner.

Wherever you live in the South, freight cars like these are mighty good friends of yours. There's hardly a thing that's made or used that doesn't involve rail transportation somewhere along the way. In fact, railroads are often the only carrier equipped and geared to do the job.

Today the Southern operates some of the fastest regularly scheduled freight service in America. To our fleet of 50,700 freight cars are now being added 1,200 new-type "easy ride" steel box cars, costing $10 million. And we are ordering 1,500 more steel hopper coal cars costing an additional $10 million.

We are growing with the growing South, with modern equipment and ever-improving service. All in the Southland benefit.

EX-SCOUTMASTER ADMITS TAKING FUNDS OF TROOP

Says He Also Sold Projector and Kept Money — Concealed Workhouse Sentence.

James T. O'Connor, a former scoutmaster who concealed a Workhouse record, was at liberty on bond today after admitting, police reported, that he diverted cash and equipment of Boy Scout Troop 195, of Irving School, to his own use.

O'Connor, arrested last Thursday, admitted that he withdrew $104 of troop funds and obtained $65 through the sale of a sound projector in the six months he was scoutmaster, police said. He was quoted as saying he was hard-pressed for funds, and used the money to meet living expenses.

After he missed three troop meetings, O'Connor was relieved as scoutmaster June 3. Members of the troop council then discovered that he had moved from his home in the 3800 block of Ashland avenue, and that the money and sound projector were missing. The council made good the funds, and police are trying to recover the projector, which O'Connor sold to a supply house.

Records revealed that O'Connor was sentenced to 30 days in the Workhouse in 1950 for passing bogus checks. In December 1952 he was sentenced to one year in the Workhouse on a similar charge. He was paroled after serving six months.

O'Connor, who is 29 years old and an electrician, was assistant scoutmaster before being named to head the troop. Members of the council said he had a fine record as an assistant, told them he was a Marine veteran of the war in Korea, and they were impressed with his ability to direct activities at meetings of the troop. An application for warrants was taken under advisement by the circuit attorney.

Yesterday police re-arrested O'Connor, who now lives in the 7800 block of Ivory avenue, pending investigation of complaints he wrote insufficient-fund checks. He furnished bond.

Sunburn Pain Disappears Smooth Tan Emerges Without Peeling or Blistering

Science Discovers New Ointment That Instantly Stops Pain of Sunburn... Turns Redness Into Comfortable Tan

New York, N. Y. (Special): A leading research institution has discovered a new medical substance that instantly stops pain of sunburn... and prevents blistering or peeling, so angry redness may turn to handsome, comfortable tan.

Doctors know that sunburn affects skin just as any ordinary burn does. They also know the body needs oxygen for healing burns. The secret of this new substance is its astonishing ability to draw healing oxygen and nutrients directly from the bloodstream into the sunburned area. Thus, the sunburned skin heals completely and, except in unusual cases, smooth tan emerges.

This substance is known as Speriti Ointment. Speriti Ointment does not sting or stain. It is now sold at all drugstores for 38¢ a large tube. Buy Speriti Ointment with the amazing guarantee that your sunburn will turn to a handsome tan, or your money is refunded.

AMERICA'S NEW RAILROAD

Quarter-mile lengths of welded steel rail curve around a foothill like wire cable.

Not a "clickety-clack" in a carload

It's Santa Fe's new continuous welded rail...
Fewer joints mean a smoother ride for you

An occasional little click—that's all you'll hear of the old "clickety-clack" as you glide over stretches of new continuous welded rail on the Santa Fe.

And these stretches will be growing longer and more frequent on the Santa Fe. For we're laying more all the time—103 miles of it this year.

In fact, we're using a new electric welding process (for the first time by an American railroad) to help bring Santa Fe's new smoother ride to more people, more goods.

But that's only part of the story.

Just as a railroad is no better than its track, track itself is no better than what's underneath it—the roadbed, the ties, the ballast. So we've been busy with new improvements here, too.

For instance, our own specially-devised ballast "dry cleaner". This unique machine cleans our ballast, keeps it more resilient so the track lies flat and even.

And today we're replacing old ties with longer and stronger new ones—specially treated to stay strong and sturdy for 30 years and more.

Day after day, something new is being done to make "America's New Railroad" even newer and better. Santa Fe is spending many millions of earned dollars every year for new roadway and new equipment. And not one penny comes from the taxes you pay.

SANTA FE SYSTEM LINES

What about expansion in these quarter-mile rails?

Near Newton, Kansas, where yearly temperatures vary from 20° below to 114° above, we laid a 5-mile experimental stretch of welded rail. Here we found that anchoring the rail to every other tie restricted expansion to the area between anchors. Thus, overall expansion was reduced to the merest fraction of an inch between rail ends. In other words, expansion is no problem whatsoever.

Coolidge Hysterical When Son Was Dying, Physician Recalls

Display of Grief in 1924 Showed President Was Not 'Cold as Ice,' Says Temple Professor.

PHILADELPHIA, July 11 (AP)—There's a footnote to history in the current bulletin of the Temple University medical center.

Dr. John A. Kolmer, professor of medicine at Temple, describes the death of President Calvin Coolidge's son, Calvin Jr., at the age of 16 in Washington's Walter Reed Hospital in 1924.

Young Coolidge scratched his feet a week earlier while playing tennis on the White House courts. Symptoms of blood and bone infection came on rapidly. Kolmer was called from Philadelphia along with Dr. John B. Deaver, renowned surgeon, who performed an exploratory operation on a bone in the right leg.

"About two hours before death it was decided to administer oxygen," Kolmer recalls.

"The wrong valves were accidentally opened on the oxygen tank with the result that a glass container exploded. A fragment of glass struck the President at the bedside on the forehead, but, fortunately, with slight injury. A very large fragment just missed my head."

Kolmer then paints this picture of the tragic death.

"During the last two hours of life the patient was attended by me alone, in the presence of President and Mrs. Coolidge and a nurse. From time to time, I examined the heart and was astounded by the President requesting that he be permitted to listen to the heart sounds.

"At about 10 p.m., I announced the boy was rapidly dying. The President sprang from his chair and took his dying son in his arms, shouting hysterically into his ears that he would soon join him in the great beyond and requesting that young Calvin so inform his grandmother (the mother of the President).

"A medallion of the grandmother was also placed in the hands of the dying boy. Mrs. Coolidge joined the President in this hour of terrific grief. The boy died at 10:20 p.m."

"It is commonly stated that President Coolidge was 'cold as ice,' but I had the opportunity of seeing him in this hour of grief and so know quite otherwise.

"Indeed, it was the most touching and heart rending experience of my whole professional career."

CHURCHMAN SAYS GRAHAM WILL BE INVITED TO RUSSIA

LONDON, July 11 (AP)—A Russian church leader said today Billy Graham will be invited to Moscow in the near future as a guest of the Evangelical Christian Baptist Council of the Soviet Union.

The Rev. J. L. Zhidkov, president of the Russian Baptist Movement, speaking in behalf of a group of visiting Russian church leaders, told a press conference "we all hope he will be able to come over."

Graham, the American evangelist now on a European tour, has said he would gladly visit Russia if he were given an opportunity to preach the Gospel. Previously the visiting Soviet churchmen, headed by Metropolitan Pitirim of Minsk, said they were considering issuing an invitation to Graham. The metropolitan said they had followed Graham's European crusade with much interest.

The Russian church dignitaries are visiting Britain as the guest of the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Geoffrey Fisher. At the press conference, the Russians talked about religion in the Soviet Union. They said the church was quite free in Russia now, even though it is not approved in Communist circles.

EDITOR, REPORTED MISSING, TURNS UP IN BUTTE, MONT.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, July 11 (AP)—Howard Rushmore, editor of Confidential, a bimonthly national magazine, who has been reported missing since early Thursday, popped up Saturday in Butte, Mont., under an assumed name. He said he was searching for a man he described as a top Communist leader and complained that publicity about his being missing had made his sources "clam up." He said he then flew to Salt Lake City looking for another man. Reports about his being missing arose when he failed to keep an appointment Friday with a Chicago detective. He denied his disappearance was a publicity stunt. His office is in New York City.

EINSTEIN DELAY BARRED SURGERY SURVIVAL HOPE

Scientist 'Waited Too Long for Use of New Technique for Treating Aneurysms.

The New York Herald Tribune-Post-Dispatch Special Dispatch.
NEW YORK, July 11—Dr. Albert Einstein had a 50-50 chance of living had he undergone surgery the moment his condition was diagnosed. But he deliberated too long, lost his chance and died.

This is the story of the five dramatic days before Einstein's death on April 18, during which surgical specialists tried to tell him of the huge advances recently made in surgery that could save him.
They told him that his condition—a ballooning of the abdominal aorta—could be remedied by grafts of blood vessels with a technique that had been developed by French surgical scientists in the last five years.

The specialists wanted to take Einstein to New York for the surgery, but he wanted to consider the situation. However, the balloon, called an aneurysm, was leaking blood and in such cases there is just 24 hours before the situation becomes hopeless.

When Einstein died, the pathologist, Dr. Thomas S. Harvey, was quoted as reporting that the autopsy showed that the aneurysm had gone too far for operation.

New Clamp Used Successfully in Aneurysm Case.
BALTIMORE, July 11 (AP)—Using an ingenious new blood-saving tool, surgeons at University of Maryland Hospital here have relieved a patient of aneurysm.

Dr. R. Adams Cowley, who performed the rare operation, reported today the patient was discharged from the hospital exactly two weeks later.
The new instrument, used in this operation for the first time, was developed by Cowley and Dr. John M. Allen, working with him as a fellow in the cardio-pulmonary department he heads. It is a clamp which enables blood to continue flowing through the aorta even while the doctors are removing the damaged section.

In its first use during the six-hour operation, it helped keep the patient's blood loss down to three pints, compared with a usual loss of about 12 pints in four similar operations Cowley performed previously.

Now relatively rare, aneurysms are expected to occur with greater frequency as antibiotics and other medical discoveries lengthen the life span of man.

FRENCH TAKE NEW ACTION TO CURB REDS IN ALGERIA

PARIS, July 11 (AP)—French authorities yesterday reported moves against the Algerian Communist party in an attempt to halt terrorism and guerrilla activity in the North African territory.

Eight Communist leaders were ordered out of the Constantine department, the vast area of eastern Algeria where guerrillas have been most active. Four others were placed in forced residence.

Guerrillas continued to sabotage crops, clashing with French troops and Algerian volunteers and losing six killed, according to reports.

At Casablanca, in the protectorate of Morocco, where newly arrived French resident-general Gilbert Grandval is studying the security problem, there were two shootings, a bombing and a fire—all attributed to political terrorists.

BELGIAN PASSAGE OF BILL OPPOSED BY CATHOLICS DUE

BRUSSELS, July 11 (UP)—The Belgian parliament was expected today to give final approval to a government school reform bill despite bitter opposition from the nation's Catholics.

For six months, Catholic circles have been arguing and demonstrating against the Socialist-Liberal government proposal which will eliminate about $10,000,000 worth of state subsidies to Catholic schools.

The bill has been approved by the lower house of parliament and is expected to win approval when it comes up before the senate tomorrow.

Some 100,000 Catholics poured into downtown Brussels yesterday in a mass demonstration against the bill. They formed into three groups and marched on the stock exchange, shouting, whistling and carrying anti-government placards.

All police in the city were mobilized and there were a few minor scuffles, but there was no violence to match the bloody rioting which followed a similar demonstration last March 26.

LANDS PLANE ON TURNPIKE

BEDFORD, Pa., July 11 (AP)—Air Force Maj. Leo Carbon-

eau, lost and out of fuel in his F-86D jet plane, badly needed a place to land yesterday, and picked the Pennsylvania turnpike.

Luckily he landed at a time when there was a lull in the usual heavy Sunday traffic. The major got his ship down in an eastbound lane near the Siding hill tunnel in Fulton county about 30 miles east of here. He was unhurt, and the plane was only slightly damaged.

CHILDS

'Humiliation' of Soviet Leaders
Trying to Win Favor With Tito
Produced Real Gains for Russia

Declaration Put Yugoslavia on Communist Side on Many Disputed Points — Western Ambassadors' Meeting Resulted in Amiable Generalities.

By MARQUIS W. CHILDS
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
Copyright, 1955, The Pulitzer Publishing Co.

BELGRADE, July 11.

HAVING SUCCEEDED with the help of the West in resisting Communist imperialism to the point that Russia's own leaders finally came to him, Marshal Josip (Tito) Broz is going on with the balancing act that has put him in the middle between the two power blocs. A gesture to the West on one day is countered with a gesture to Moscow on the following day.

Shortly after Premier Bulganin and Communist party chief Nikita Khrushchev make their pilgrimage to Belgrade, the ambassadors of the United States, France and Britain held a formal conference with top Yugoslav officials here which resulted in a declaration confirming "the wide measure of agreement between the four governments in their approach to the various international questions under review." This statement had scarcely been signed before it was announced that Tito would go to Moscow to return the visit of the Kremlin rulers.

During the Khrushchev-Bulganin visit more than 100 correspondents from the West described in their dispatches from Belgrade the humiliating extent to which Russia went to win favor with Yugoslavia. They reported Khrushchev's buffoonery as part of the spectacle of Soviet abasement. Yet on sober second thought this humiliation—and it appears to have been in large part a calculated act—has resulted in real gains for the Soviet bloc.

On Communist Side. Tito signed a joint declaration with Bulganin, putting Yugoslavia on the Communist side on many specific points of disputed policy. One was to call for the return of Formosa to Communist China. This was in marked contrast with the amiable generalities contained in the declaration concluding the conference with Western ambassadors.

An active and intensive Soviet campaign is continuing at every level to win Yugoslav allegiance. This serves to underscore the historic ties that for centuries held the Slavs of east Europe in close affinity with Russia.

But this campaign also points up a source of hurt pride that these proud people invariably raise with the American visitor. For at least a year and a half Yugoslav officials have been hunting that Tito would like to visit the United States. These hints have been passed on through usual diplomatic channels and they have met with no response whatsoever.

Secretary of State Dulles' press conference remark that Tito would be welcome if he expressed a desire to visit the United States was in the scarcely concealed view of most Yugoslav officials a grievous insult. After all, they say, he was invited to be guest of Queen Elizabeth of England and he has either visited or shortly will visit as official guest most of the capitals of the world.

Peace-Maker Role. In the role in which they have cast themselves as peace-makers between East and West—and again this has its roots in the extraordinary pride—the men close to Tito do not hesitate to say that a Tito visit to Washington would help the United States. It would help persuade doubters everywhere and particularly in neutralist nations in Asia and Europe of the reality of America's professed belief that each nation has a right to choose its own social system so long as it does not seek to interfere in affairs of any other nation. Those who are frankest in Tito's regime also say that such a visit would benefit Tito, who has never been in the United States. He would see at first hand the overblowing productivity of American enterprise and the high standard of living of American workers under the free enterprise system. Being considerable of a realist despite his Communist convictions, Tito would be likely to understand and appreciate American methods.

It is out of America's abundant productivity that Yugoslavia has received since its break with Soviet Russia in 1948 one-half billion dollars in economic aid, and while the total of military aid has never been released it can scarcely be less than one billion dollars. Last year 1,000,000 tons of wheat were shipped in aid, and other stores out of America's bulging larders continue to come in.

Jet Planes and Tanks. On the military side jet planes—perhaps as many as 100—have been furnished Yugoslavia's air force. Some tanks of advanced design have been sent and recent equipment has included radar and electronic fire control devices.

Later, requiring advanced technical knowledge to operate, have raised some problems. American military men have had doubts about the ability of Yugoslavs to maintain this equipment and they have repeatedly asked for the right to observe it in operation. The reply is this: This would be interference in internal affairs of Yugoslavia and therefore it is impossible.

It may be that at this point pride becomes supersensitivity and suspicion. Significantly, one of the reasons for the break with Russia was Yugoslavia's refusal to follow the direction of a Russian military mission in Belgrade.

The break with Moscow put an end to the prospect of an eastern European bloc closely linked to Russia. It spelled the end of Communist civil war in Greece and many other benefits can be traced to it and to the division of the 30 divisions that Yugoslavia had under arms then and now. With the buildup of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in the past seven years and rapid development of atomic weapons those divisions have less importance. But if the stubborn pride of Tito and the men around him are a complication in Belgrade's relationship with the West it must never be forgotten that the same independence brought the break which was the first crack in the outwardly solid Communist structure.

SERIES OF BIG 4
MEETINGS TO COST
U.S. OVER MILLION

WASHINGTON, July 11 (AP)—If everything goes as planned, this month's summit meeting of world leaders will be followed by three foreign ministers conferences and five negotiating conferences at a total cost to United States taxpayers of $1,100,000.

Plans for the series of parleys were outlined to the House Appropriations Committee by Harold G. Kissick, director of the Office of International Conferences. His secret testimony was made public yesterday by the committee.

Kissick estimated the United States cost of the Geneva Big Four meeting at $275,000, the three ministerial meetings at $450,000, and the five negotiating conferences at $375,000.

The total United States delegation to the summit meeting, Kissick said, would include 62 persons actually assigned to the conferences, 114 attached to the secretariat, 30 guards and 28 assigned to the international secretariat.

Afghan Minister in Turkey. ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 11 (AP)—Foreign Minister Serdar Naim Khan of Afghanistan arrived here Saturday and told reporters he expected to have talks "which would be of mutual advantage" to this country and his own. There has been speculation Afghanistan may be invited to join the Middle East pact linking Turkey, Iraq and Britain.

POLAND AND RED GERMANY
REAFFIRM BORDER PACT

BERLIN, July 11 (AP)—Poland and East Germany have reaffirmed their determination to defend the Oder-Neisse line as the common frontier between the two Communist lands.

In a joint statement marking the fifth anniversary of the East German-Polish government, the two governments said yesterday: "There is complete agreement that the establishment of the peace border along the Oder and Neisse (rivers) is the final regulation of the frontier between Germany and Poland."

The United States, Britain and the Soviet Union granted the territory provisionally to Poland at Potsdam in 1945 with the understanding that the matter would be considered again at the final German peace treaty negotiations.

End of 9000-Mile Airlift

First contingent of 3900 paratroopers of the 508th Airborne Regimental Combat Team arriving at Ashiya Air Force Base after 9000-mile flight from Fort Campbell, Ky. The Army is using 43 big C-124 Globemasters to fly them to Japan to replace the 187th ARCT, which will be returned to the United States by the same Globemasters.

Kentucky-to-Japan Trooplift
Half Completed as 2000 Land
Giant Globemaster Planes Taking Airborne
Regiment Across Pacific — Will Bring
Another Back to Duty in U.S.

ASHIYA AIR BASE, Japan, July 11 (AP).—

HISTORY'S greatest airborne movement of troops from America to Asia was half completed today and a massive trooplift back to the United States was about to start.

By late Monday, 24 C-124 Globemasters had brought more than 2000 men of the 3900-man 508th Airborne Regiment to Japan. Nineteen more Globemasters, were arriving at this North sea port aboard a military transport. German trains will speed them and their dependents to their stations in Bavaria. The same trains will return elements of the First Division to Bremerhaven where they will board the American transport which sails Wednesday for the United States.

Several trans-Atlantic crossings will be made by November to complete the switch, involving nearly 50,000 troops and their dependents.

The transfer marks the end of 13 years of overseas duty for the First (Big Red One) Division, which went into action in North Africa in 1942 and spearheaded the Normandy landings in 1944.

Col. Norman E. Tipton, commander of the 508th, said that operationally, the airlift has proceeded smoothly. The main trouble appears to be legal difficulties connected with general military travel regulations.

He pointed out the regulations were written long before mass air travel became possible. They will have to be changed to eliminate the red tape, the filling out of forms, and the adherence to rules on movement of household goods—aspects connected with simultaneous exchange of large units and of families—which act to retard air lifts, he said.

Tipton also said the 508th will have two weeks in which to take things fairly easy, getting living quarters in shape and installing families coming over by ship. Then the paratroopers will go into the field for squadron team jumps on Monkey Mountain—which teams with monkeys—overlooking Beppu.

NEW YORK POLL ON STEVENSON OR
GOV. HARRIMAN

NEW YORK, July 11.—The New York Democratic party will poll the state's enrolled Democrats and also run a survey to determine their preference between Gov. Averell Harriman and Adlai Stevenson for the presidential nomination, the newly elected state chairman, Michael H. Prendergast, announced yesterday.

Prendergast added, however, "There is no question in my mind that their feeling will be for Averell Harriman."

In a television appearance here, he predicted the New York delegation will go to the 1956 convention with its 96 votes solidly behind Gov. Harriman, and not as a "favorite-son candidate."

The two top New York Democrats—Gov. Harriman and New York City Mayor Robert F. Wagner—are on record in favor of Stevenson.

Flood Threat in Austria. VIENNA, July 11 (AP)—The rain-swollen Danube was threatening Austria today with serious flood damage. All Danube shipping was halted. Emergency evacuation measures were taken to avoid a repetition of last year's flood catastrophe.

Summit Talks
Are Already Under Way

Eden Speech 10 Days Ago Offered Basis for Negotiation.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND LONDON.

IN A VERY real sense, the summit conference is already under way. It got under way in London last week, 10 days before the Big Four gather in Geneva, when British Prime Minister Eden laid down the most precise and concrete position on paper which has thus far come from any of the western spokesmen.

Eden's proposals emerged from an address to the British Speaking Union. But this was far more than just a speech. It was a careful, considered state paper which Eden addressed primarily to the Kremlin.

He addressed it to the Kremlin in advance of the Geneva meeting so that the Soviet leaders would have time to determine whether and how they wished to respond when they met at the summit.

Sought to Facilitate Talk. He purposefully advanced his views at this time so that as he put it, negotiations could be "facilitated," so that Moscow could be better prepared to explore new plans for European security and disarmament and so that as much as possible could be accomplished in the short span of a week at Geneva.

His ideas in no way conflict with official Washington thinking and because they deal primarily with Europe, Eden was clearly a most useful spokesman to give them voice.

His prime objective is to break the stalemate which has thus far appeared to surround the Geneva discussions before they have actually begun. This stalemate stems from the fact that both sides have, on the record, at least, taken a series of positions totally unacceptable to each other.

Russia Confined Jet Bomber
Producers Until It Got Plane

This Tactic Gave Them Their Intercontinental Bison in 8 Months — U.S. Took 3 Years to Develop B-52.

By JOSEPH ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

ONE OF THE MOST significant and curious pieces of intelligence to come out of the Soviet Union in a long time concerns the production of the famous Bison airplane. The Bison, or T-37, is the Russian equivalent of our own intercontinental jet bomber, the B-52.

In brief, the Soviets produced the Bison prototype by gathering all the persons concerned into a single huge hangar at their Ramenskoye base outside Moscow and keeping them there until blueprints had become aircraft. Air engineers, Air Force officers in charge of the project, scores of electronic and other specialists, many hundreds of mechanics and workmen—all these were held together in a kind of laborious purdah until they had done their job.

United States Air Force authorities somewhat ruefully accord full credence to this sidelight on Soviet production methods. Furthermore, they estimated that it took only eight months from the approval of the Bison blueprints to the moment when the first Bison rolled out of Ramenskoye's special construction hangar in July, 1953.

Flown Over Moscow. After ground-testing, this Bison prototype is believed to have made its first experimental flight in the autumn of 1953. It was flown over Moscow at low altitude (and dismissed by the Pentagon leadership as of no significance) in May, 1954.

By then, the Bison had reached the stage of in-line production. Flights of 10 Bisons at a time were observed over Moscow this May. The Air Force officially estimates that the Soviets are now each month producing from 15 to 20 of these bombers which can strike from Russian bases, without refueling, at the industrial heartland of the United States.

In contrast, work on the American intercontinental jet bomber, the B-52, began in 1947. Blueprints were approved and the first experimental contracts were let to the Boeing company in 1949—the moment "crudely comparable with the first rally in the Ramenskoye hangar. Construction proceeded thereafter, with the air staff in the Pentagon, the Air Materiel Command at Wright Field and the Air Research and Development Command, which was then in Wash-

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Corliss Lamont on His Book

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

While I deeply sympathize with anyone who is asked to read more than 450 pages of my "Soviet Civilization," I think that R. R. Hackford, who reviewed the book for your issue of June 17, ought to have done more than carelessly thumb through the volume.

If he had actually read it, he could not possibly have said that I "accept the idea that capitalism will decline and Communism will expand, inevitably." I have always rejected, as philosophically unacceptable and politically unsound, the deterministic Communist doctrine of the "inevitability" of Socialism and Communism.

If Mr. Hackford had read my book, he would not have written, either, that I consider "advances in economic well-being all-important no matter what the price in human freedom and individuality." On the contrary, I believe that the most fundamental reason for the program of economic progress is that such progress, whether in Soviet Russia, the United States or anywhere else, can and should result in greater human freedom, individuality and cultural attainment.

Mr. Hackford pays no attention to these two sentences in my preface. "I am repelled by the dictatorial and repressive aspects of the Soviet regime, but am unwilling to join in wholesale condemnations of it based on a one-sided over-emphasis of its negative points. The complete and many-sided story is what we need for a just evaluation of Soviet life; the common-sense recognition, avoiding both extremes, that it contains much that is good and much that is bad."

The fact is that your reviewer calls me an apologist for the Soviet Union, precisely because I take an unbiased viewpoint and refuse to follow the cold war pack in utterly denouncing everything Soviet.

The final absurdity of Mr. Hackford's review is his statement that in dealing with America-Soviet relations I follow the Communist party line. Yet the American Government and its allies are now adopting much of the program I suggested in my chapter, "Co-Existence or Co-Destruction," especially my point about the desirability of a great power conference at the top level.

And President Eisenhower himself has come out in favor of peaceful co-existence. Who's following the Communist line now?

CORLISS LAMONT,

New York City.

Questions Aid to Tito

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

I read where Harold Stassen appealed for a continuance of aid to Yugoslavia. We are supposed to have given Tito some $50,000,000 from 1945 to 1954. I wonder if a mistake is being made in continuing aid to a man who is an avowed Communist. I have never heard of real and true friendship being bought.

HENRY SCHOTTEL.

No Savings to Citizens

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The second Hoover Commission is constantly insisting that the Government get out of business, so that it will not interfere with the profits of the private owners of industries. The way in which the Government may help the profit-seeker yet hurt the interest of the citizens is illustrated by the decision of the Department of Commerce, which has control of the Government Printing Office, not to re-issue the excellent book on "Care and Repair of the House."

This book sold 175,000 copies until 1950 when it was revised, and about 115,000 more copies since then, despite no advertising of it.

McGraw-Hill is planning a substantially similar book, except for some window-dressing, to be published for $3.95. So the Government, under President Eisenhower, has decided not to keep its book in print. The profits of the publishing company will be increased, but citizens and taxpayers will have to pay $3.95 for information which the Government made available to them for 60c.

Suggestion to Police

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Despite the need for all policemen to exert as much as possible of their efforts to prevention of crime in St. Louis I still see several standing around the new downtown traffic lights, alert to arrest some pedestrian who violates a light.

If there are enough policemen to spare for traffic-light-watching duty I sincerely urge that they be put at the Pine, Olive, Locust and Washington intersections with Twelfth boulevard where motorists frequently run through the lights. Why specialize on the pedestrian whose lot is a little worse now than motor traffic has been speeded up in the downtown area?

TRAFFIC CONSCIOUS.

Mayor Tobey's Hot Retort

Wholesome indignation characterizes the statement of Mayor Frank Tobey of Memphis in his interview in the Sunday Post-Dispatch.

From what Mayor Tobey said it is obvious that he and the national Administration are of two different parties. It is also obvious that he does not mind hitting back hard. But when allowances are made, the substance of Mayor Tobey's statement adds up to a lot of common sense. Because it will not be as widely printed over the country for the information of the American people as it should be, we reproduce Mayor Tobey's statement in full below.

Independent voters who do their own political thinking will see that the Memphis Mayor demolishes the patently distracting tactic of the White House in demanding "assurances" that Memphis will build its own power plant rather than take a kilowatt of electricity from the Dixon-Yates utility promoters.

Mayor Tobey was interviewed by the Post-Dispatch before he went to Washington for conferences Monday with TVA, Budget and other officials. He said:

In the first place there is no actual situation existing in which President Eisenhower on one hand gives an ultimatum of 90 days for Memphis to move toward building its own steam plant, and the city on the other hand races to meet the 90-day deadline.

This is so much Republican hogwash to confuse the public. The true situation is that Memphis decided in its own democratic, fundamentally American manner to build a steam plant rather than accept power from Dixon-Yates. And by so doing, Memphis has taken the Eisenhower Administration off the hook and opened the door through which the President can sidestep a political scandal of startling proportions.

Consequently, it is our feeling that the Administration should be thankful for our sincerity and honesty of purpose, rather than keep trying to insist that we come up with some special phrase-making that will help the Republicans in campaign contests.

Also, let's get the record straight. The Memphis City Commission on June 23 passed a resolution authorizing our light, gas and water division to commence the construction of a steam plant.

We are not bluffing, and neither are we going to write campaign literature for an inept (federal) Administration when it bungles the public interest.

A straight-forward answer to this from President Eisenhower, Attorney General Brownell, Budget Director Hughes and AEC Chairman Strauss would make interesting reading.

The Shopper's Emotions

Next time we go to a store for a shirt, or a pocket handkerchief, we are going to take closer notice of our emotions. Irving R. Gilman, of the Institute for Motivational Research, Croton-on-Hudson, N.Y., has been researching the motivations of shoppers, and has come up with an amazing passel of reasons why people buy.

Shoppers, Mr. Gilman says, look to their stores for fulfillment, for freedom of action, for social status, for trust, for encouragement, and for family-like relations. Shopping is "an extremely emotional experience," he says, and even more so if the shopper is a woman.

Many men, it would seem to us, have purchased a pair of socks, thinking they did so because an old pair had a hole in it, when their real reason was that they were unfulfilled. We intend to watch that kind of thing carefully from now on. Not ever again is it going to be enough to get a size 11 in a light gray.

The Red Cross Earns a Bow

The St. Louis chapter of the American Red Cross has earned the community's appreciation in still another way by joining the United Fund of Greater St. Louis. This will permit most of the fund raising drives here to be consolidated into one great co-operative campaign.

Nationally the American Red Cross had held back from united fund-raising campaigns until recently. It argued that the united method was not well adapted to its requirements. Shortly after the United Fund of Greater St. Louis was organized, the American Red Cross reversed its national policy, and permitted its chapters to join united campaigns under certain conditions. The co-operation of the St. Louis chapter with the United Fund is the happy result.

The National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis—the March of Dimes—now remains the sole major hold-out against the united campaign. Its objections are similar to those formerly held by the Red Cross, and can be met just as practically. Surely the foundation will not continue to go against the expressed wishes of the local leadership of this community and the overall fund-raising needs of Greater St. Louis.

It would be a constructive move if the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis would follow the Red Cross's neighborly example.

Bet No. 1: The White House

The presidency is the biggest gamble in American politics. A suggestion that the next occupant of the White House be determined by a roll of the dice or a cutting of the cards would be shocking. But for reflecting the will of the people, the Electoral College can be almost as bad.

In 1952, for example, Adlai E. Stevenson got one electoral vote for every 306,646 popular votes, and Dwight D. Eisenhower got one for every 76,764 votes. The President would have been the winner in any event, but by a closer margin than that in the Electoral College.

The root of the trouble, of course, is that a candidate who carries a state, no matter how narrow his margin, gets all of that state's electoral votes. Thus a man who wins the big states by less than half the thickness of a whisker slides into the White House on an electoral landslide—yet across the country his opponent possibly may have piled up more popular votes.

All sorts of crazy situations actually have come to pass. In 1924, for example, 6,000,000 of the popular votes given John W. Davis, the Democratic candidate, were not worth a single electoral vote. But the other 2,000,000 ballots marked for him were good for 136 electoral votes.

In 1952 when relatively few voters went to the polls in Mississippi, their state got one electoral vote for every 36,000 ballots cast, but in Minnesota each electoral vote represented 125,000 votes. The Mississippi planter was about three times as influential as the Minnesota farmer.

There is nothing new about these and more damaging oddities of democracy. James Madison foresaw them and so argued for popular election of the President. Ever since his day some voices have been calling for reform. They are heard again as another election year approaches.

Minnesota's Democratic Senator Humphrey has introduced a bill to abolish the Electoral College. He is a straight Madison man. Two other Democratic Senators, Kefauver of Tennessee and Daniel of Texas, have sponsored a bill to divide each state's electoral votes in direct proportion to the popular vote. And Republican Senator Mundt of South Dakota and Representative Coudert of New York are co-sponsors of a bill calling for voting on electors by congressional districts, rather than by a state as an entire unit.

Each of these proposals, of course, contemplates a constitutional amendment. With the nominating conventions only about a year away, it would be a poor bet—since we have mentioned gambles—to say that reforms will be instituted in time to affect the 1956 results.

Indeed politicians have become so accustomed to the Electoral College system that some of them even feel it has its advantages—chiefly that of allowing them to concentrate on a few big states to win the whole nation—and so should be retained. But if enough voters realize that they are being short-changed and that their President may not really be elected but chosen almost by the fall of the cards, then the voting will be democratized.

Seaward From New Orleans

St. Louis has a direct interest in the proposed tidewater ship canal to give the port of New Orleans a shorter, safer, more reliable means of access to the Gulf of Mexico.

St. Louis exports through the New Orleans outlet such industrial products as steel bars and pipe, agricultural implements, chemicals, electrical equipment and automobiles. It exports such agricultural products as corn, wheat, oats, soybeans and flour. And it imports among other commodities coffee and burlap.

New Orleans is 110 miles from the passes of the Mississippi river into the Gulf. Between the city and open water are only swamplands and marshes, lakes and bayous—some land, but mostly water.

Through this no-man's-land wind two passes usable by seagoing vessels. One pass is used while the other is being dredged, and though dredging goes on almost continuously a 30-foot depth is available little more than half the year.

The channels are shallow, intricate and treacherous, with dangerous shoals; the current is swift, and fog increases the hazards. Ships frequently run aground, some of them sink. Capt. James Buchanan Eads, who built St. Louis's own Eads bridge, performed the first improvement of one of these passes some 75 years ago.

Forward-looking New Orleans seeks construction of a seaway canal 70 miles long, and an inner tidewater harbor connecting with the Gulf Intracoastal Waterway and the Industrial Canal. This would shorten the route to the Gulf by 45 miles, save an estimated $1500 a ship in turnaround time, and enable ships to steer a course by radar if necessary.

St. Louis and the upper Mississippi and Missouri valleys share New Orleans's interest in the bill, pending in Congress, to give this entire region more modern access to the sea.

As to Hawaii

One of the bills which President Eisenhower says he wants passed is that to admit Hawaii as a state. The way to get it passed has been set out in an admirable statement in the House of Representatives by Republican Congressman Judd of Minnesota. As Mr. Judd says, the most persuasive formula is to admit both Hawaii and Alaska at the same time.

Both these territories deserve admission. The case of each will be helped by the other. What would be an act of simple justice for the people who live in Hawaii and Alaska would become a demonstration of the belief of the United States in the extension of democratic procedures to all who live under the Stars and Stripes. Congressman Judd says the moral of the act would make a great impression on depressed peoples of the Pacific area and Southeast Asia.

As our readers know, we have been saying just that for much of the last decade. We hope the President will give Mr. Judd's sound appeal the attention it deserves.

Not for the AEC

Personal and professional integrity should be required of any public official. So the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy was justified in checking reports about the fiduciary conduct of Allen Whitfield, President Eisenhower's nominee for the Atomic Energy Commission. Whitfield has now asked the President to withdraw his name lest the commission become involved in controversy.

There were, however, more fundamentally disturbing aspects of the Whitfield nomination, even if they did not carry the kind of implication which led to examination of his connection with the Valley Bank & Trust Co. of Des Moines. First there was the charge of Representative Melvin Price of Illinois, a Democratic member of the Joint Committee, that Whitfield had been named in response to a demand for more patronage for Iowa Republicans. Even more serious was the lack of any indication that the man was qualified by training, experience or well-founded interest for the work of the AEC.

With the possible exception of the Central Intelligence Agency, the AEC is the most unusual of federal agencies in that the people—and to a considerable extent Congress itself—are kept uninformed about most of its activities. Secrecy about the AEC has been equated with national security. That is why it should be made up only of men in whose ability and fitness the public can have the utmost confidence.

If ever AEC memberships become plums for political lawyers and rewards for party workers, then some changes will have to be made. Whitfield's looked just like that kind of appointment, and that is the best reason for welcoming his withdrawal.

Hint From Strasbourg

Those who hoped that creation of the Council of Europe would be but a short interim step toward organic federation of the continental nations have lost hope in Strasbourg. Yet the organization has proved useful by just bringing the foreign ministers together for discussions which otherwise might not have been held.

Strasbourg, however, can serve more specifically. A good example is the proposal just made by British Foreign Secretary Harold Macmillan and French Foreign Minister Antoine Pinay that the Council be enlarged to include members from beyond the Iron Curtain. After all, a forum for the whole continent is more necessary before than after any merger of sovereignties.

The most important aspect of this proposal is its implicit counsel for the United Nations. Macmillan and Pinay stressed that they did not wish in any way to weaken the Western alliance. Without in any way weakening that alliance, a broader membership could make the U.N. more useful.

Its charter does not preclude regional arrangements. But international gatherings of the representatives of friendly nations only enhance existing understanding. The area of understanding can be widened only where conflicting views are represented. This does not mean, of course, that a government like Red China's can "shoot" its way into an international organization. But there are other non-members waiting for a vote of admission.

IT MAY BE CHEAPER BUT—

Vigilantes Against Fluoridation

The Mirror of Public Opinion

Opponents of fluoridating water supply for dental health call plan everything from dangerous to Communist, but this opposition itself represents extremist views; writer traces background of leading critics; they include food faddists, patent medicine men.

Vic Reinemer in The Reporter Magazine

More than 20,000,000 Americans in more than a thousand communities drink fluoridated water—water to which approximately one part of sodium fluoride per million has been added. Another 3,500,000 Americans drink naturally fluoridated water.

Fluoridation has been approved by every scientific society of recognized standing in the field of health, including the American Dental Association, dental societies of all the states and territories, the American Medical Association and the U.S. Public Health Service. They favor fluoridation because exhaustive tests, conducted over a period of years, have shown that fluoridation reduces tooth decay among children, on the average, by 50 per cent or more.

For example, the rate of dental decay among six-to-12-year-old children in Newburgh, N.Y., where the water has been fluoridated since 1945, is running 50 per cent below the rate in nearby Kingston, which does not have fluoridation. Nevertheless, fluoridation has vigorous opponents. Some claim that it is lethal, others that it is a Marxist plot. In community fluoridation fights, anti-fluoridationists frequently distribute literature written by Dr. Betts, Dr. E. H. Bronner, Dr. Royal Lee, and the Citizens Medical Reference Bureau.

Nature of the Opposition

Dr. Bronner is a Los Angeles chemist who manufactures Dr. Bronner's Organic Mineral Salt, which he claims is superior to fluoridated water. Active in the anti-fluoridation movement in Seattle, where his side won a 2-1 referendum victory, Dr. Bronner has referred to fluoridation as "treason," "insanity," and "Communism."

In January 1952 when he was making speeches against fluoridation in Iowa, he aroused the suspicion of the Clinton Herald which discovered that he had been committed to the Elin, Ill. state hospital for the mentally ill on March 27, 1944 and escaped in 1947. He speedily accepted the alternative to recommitment offered by Clinton police, and left town. The city council nevertheless voted down fluoridation by an overwhelming 8-1.

Dr. Lee is a vitamin-products jobber who also opposes pasteurization of milk and cooking in aluminum pans, and advocates use of his products in preference to fluoridated water. He was convicted in 1940 in federal court in Milwaukee of misbranding one of his products, which he claimed would cure 41 diseases and conditions, including goiter, Bright's disease, whooping cough, dropsy, cystitis, "weakness in hot weather," St. Vitus' dance, and falling hair.

In 1942 he was ordered to stop shipping misbranded products in interstate commerce. In 1951 a federal court in Los Angeles ordered food stores to stop giving away some of his literature. Nevertheless, following his speech to a women's club in Lakeland, Fla., in 1952, that city's councilmen were persuaded to return fluoridation equipment which they had not yet installed.

Same Arguments Used in 1920s

Dr. Lee's opposition to pasteurization is shared by Dr. Betts. Incidentally, Dr. Lee has never practiced the dentistry for which he trained, and Dr. Betts never trained for the dentistry which he practices. He received his license in 1902, when dental-college training was not required. Dr. Betts also opposes vaccination.

The Citizens Medical Reference Bureau, with offices at 1860 Broadway in New York City, is using some of the same arguments against fluoridation that it used against vaccination in the 1920s. An A.M.A. investigator reported that the Bureau's secretary sells "Koch's drug for cancer," which consists almost entirely of distilled water.

According to James C. Spaulding of the Milwaukee Journal, the Bureau is financed by anti-vivisectionists as well as opponents of chlorination, vaccination, and fluoridation. Several of fluoridation's vocal opponents also oppose use of aluminum utensils for cooking.

In some communities Christian Scientists have opposed fluoridation on the ground that it constitutes mass medication. A few physicians and dentists find the "socialized medicine" argument of opponents appealing.

But rarely has a practicing dentist, physician, or public-health official opposed fluoridation. In those few instances the opposition was usually based on a reservation that can be stated thus: "Results of fluoridation so far seem beneficial, but we need more time and data before we can be certain."

Tactics of the Extremists

It is the extremists, rather than the occasional unconvinced physician or dentist, who persuade voters and councilmen to reject the advice of health experts. The extremists are aided by the general indifference of newspapers and organizations. Opponents of fluoridation have found that, while putting Lenin in the other camp, helps their cause, putting J. Edgar Hoover on their side is advantageous too.

The FBI director figured in the Yonkers, N.Y., campaign last fall to rescind a 1951 ordinance that appropriated $10,000 with which to begin fluoridation. W. D. Herrstrom's Americanism Bulletin had reported that Mr. Hoover warned the public in 1951 to report any attempted "poisoning of public water supplies." Clearly, it was a patriotic duty to expose the fluoridation plot.

An unsigned pamphlet quoting Mr. Hoover was distributed in Yonkers. Despite his letter to a council member stating that he had "never issued any statement concerning fluoridation" and that his 1951 remark "should not be construed as an opinion" on the subject, the council backed away from fluoridation, 10-3.

Mountain Home to Milwaukee

The little community of Mountain Home, Ark., was one of the few to approve fluoridation at the last general election. There were the usual scare pamphlets and timorous officials. But they were outweighed by the weekly Baxter Bulletin, which latched onto fluoridation after a state health department dentist proposed it at a Rotary meeting. The weekly informed the voters and showed up the opponents more effectively than many dailies in other communities did.

Milwaukee is another community where an aggressive newspaper campaign (by the Journal) paid off. Councilmen there hedged from 1948 until 1953, when fluoridation was approved by 3-2 in a referendum. Milwaukee's brewers contributed to the delaying action. They were not particularly worried about fluoridation's possible effect on the taste or quality of their products, but they were afraid sales might be hurt anyway.

Perhaps their concern was justified. In view of the public's imaginative powers. In Ellyria, O., and Charlotte, N.C., city officials received numerous complaints about the water's bad taste after it was announced that fluoridation was about to begin. Actually, fluoridation had not yet begun in either city.

ROVING EYE IN KANSAS.

From the Lawrence (Kan.) Journal World.

A list of Kansas scenic spots compiled by state geologists includes White Cloud Lookout in Doniphan county. From that high bluff, the report says, "one can look into Missouri, Nebraska and Iowa." And who can doubt that all of those states need looking into?

Back Trails to Lhasa

TIBETAN MARCHES, by Andre Migot (E. F. Du-

Roi and Co., 25 cent. W. H. Allen &amp; Co., 35 cent.)

Where is the Great Grass Desert? The Roof of the World? What is shamanism, Lamaism, the Tantric Vehicle, nirvana? Andre Migot, French physician who survived a strenuous journey through the Chinese-Tibetan borderlands, Inner Mongolia and North China, answers a multitude of such questions in his recently published book, "Tibetan Marches." Dr. Migot is a student of oriental religions. In December 1946, he was delighted to be assigned a mission of research into certain aspects of Buddhism in and near Tibet.

In an effort to appreciate the humbler and more representative elements of the civilization, he approached by back trails, employing the most primitive means of transportation and crossing forbidding terrain. Migot helped to avoid the role of tourist, photographer, multitude of such questions in his recently published book, "Tibetan Marches." Dr. Migot is a student of oriental religions. In December 1946, he was delighted to be assigned a mission of research into certain aspects of Buddhism in and near Tibet.

In December 1946, he was delighted to be assigned a mission of research into certain aspects of Buddhism in and near Tibet.

As a religious account, "Marches" authoritatively delineates the hierarchy of Buddhist deities, Omotofu, God of Light, Manjusri, God of Metaphysical Wisdom, Kwangyin, Goddess of Mercy, and a host of others. We also read of Kesar of Ling, a sort of Tibetan Davy Crockett.

Migot enters a serious indictment against Western missionary activities. He views them as an attempt to force alien doctrine upon people who already have a beautiful concept of divinity in their own, more honest or less spiritual than that of Christianity. He feels that missionary work would be more appropriate in the West inasmuch as the creed of materialism is strongest there. His respect for Tibetan beliefs is sincere, never casual. He is one of those remarkable men who are able to be objective enough to understand religion and sensitive enough to experience it.

As a travel account, "Marches" is warm and open-hearted. Road companions, local officials, religious figures and humble herdsmen are all introduced with equal pleasure. Even bandits who stripped Migot of all his valuables and Communist soldiers who later imprisoned him are described in a fair-minded manner, even humorously.

The author is to be commended on a chronicle which is at once both scholarly and entertaining. Peter Fleming has translated the text from French superbly and the freshness of his vocabulary is everywhere apparent. Two excellent maps permit the reader to follow the Doctor's journey.

Two Morley Favorites

PARNASSUS ON WHEELS, THE HAUNTED BOOK-

SHOP, by Christopher Morley. (Lippincott, 50c.)

Book-lovers have no need to be told about these two short novels. They are bookish tales, written by Christopher Morley some 30 years ago and still in print. "Parnassus" tells of a wise yet feckless fellow who travels about New England bringing enlightenment and entertainment to divers people. In "The Haunted Bookshop" he sets up in the bookselling business, again bringing much fun and "bookishness" (if I may coin the word) to all and sundry. The present edition is delightful, pairing the two books in a single box. The format is graceful, the print attractive, and the illustrations excellent. The whole package is topped off with an affectionate and understanding introduction by an aficionado, John T. Winterich. I can think of no better gift for a book-loving friend.

THOMAS L. STOKES

Anti-TVA at Home; Pro-TVA Abroad

WASHINGTON. PREMIER U NU OF BURMA included a visit to TVA in his itinerary in this country. But that's hardly news. In fact it's routine at Knoxville and in the Tennessee Valley Authority region whose inhabitants have become accustomed to a continual procession of visitors from all over the world.

Nearly every official of a foreign government who comes to the United States puts TVA at the top among sights he wants to see while here. Why? Because TVA is the one thing in our country which people everywhere know about. This is because of what TVA has done for the land and the people of a large area of our nation. To visitors from other lands it is something typically American, for it represents the spirit of originality and of the pioneering to find new techniques to get the most out of our resources for the most people.

U Nu

other project embodying reclamation and irrigation features of TVA, though not hydroelectric power, which is designed to utilize most effectively the waters of the Indus river system, the division of which is now in controversy between India and Pakistan.

Significantly enough, this was suggested originally by an American banker, Eugene Black, when he was in India for the World Bank trying to do something about the India-Pakistan water dispute, which the bank is seeking to arbitrate.

In the Holy Land.

"Black saw the opportunity and value of a TVA type of development for the Indus system, and called in as consultant David Lilienthal, who was for many years chairman of the TVA board.

A business man, Eric Johnston, a two-term president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, was delegated by President Eisenhower to negotiate for creation of another foreign TVA—that proposed for the Jordan river system in the Holy Land. But this idea which has become such a valuable item of export, making friends for us in many parts of the world, is under a cloud in this country. Not only is TVA itself under attack, as we know, but a fight is being made against extension of the TVA pattern to other great watersheds still undeveloped, such as Hell's Canyon along the Idaho-Oregon border, as well as to other links in the Columbia river system.

Foreigners Eye Dixon-Yates.

Naturally this is hard for people elsewhere to understand. That explains the inquiries here from correspondents of foreign newspapers.

They are giving special attention to the complicated Dixon-Yates contract, now under investigation by a special judiciary subcommittee headed by Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee.

We are beginning to learn the truth of what one world traveler, Associate Justice William O. Douglas of the Supreme Court, said:

"It may come as a surprise to many Americans that their Tennessee Valley Authority program is not only well known by countless Asiatics, even in the remotest reaches of that continent, but has come to mean to them a symbol of a hopeful new way of life for themselves and their children."

'DESERT SONG' OPENS AT PARK OPERA

Ninth Time Show Is Being Produced at Outdoor Theater.

"The Desert Song," Sigmund Romberg's musical story of the French Army in North Africa, will open a one-week engagement at Municipal Opera beginning at 8:30 o'clock tonight. It will be the open-air theater's ninth production of "The Desert Song," which set a one-week attendance record of 83,457 persons in 1950.

The book and lyrics, written by Otto Harbach, Oscar Hammerstein II and Frank Mandel, tell of a renegade Frenchman who leads Riff tribesmen in an uprising against French rule, and of his love for a French general's ward.

Romberg's musical score includes the title song and "One Alone," "The Riff Song," "One Flower in Your Garden," "Romance" and others.

Heading the cast in the production are Edward Roecker as the Red Shadow; Janet Medlin as Margot; Jack Goode as Benjamin Kidd; and newcomer Norman Scott, Metropolitan Opera bass-baritone, as Ali Ben Ali.

"The Desert Song" is the sixteenth Municipal Opera show of the current season. Tickets for it and remaining productions are on sale at the Arcade Building lobby, Famous-Barr Southtown store, and Municipal Theater box office in Forest Park.

Neuberger Art Show at Museum Is City's Top Summer Exhibit

Work of 49 Modern U.S. Painters and Sculptors Reflects Collectors' Catholicity of Taste.

By HOWARD DERRICKSON

Forty-seven paintings and two sculptures by 49 modern American artists have been placed on display in Gallery 32 at City Art Museum. These works, in virtually every contemporary style, constitute a touring version of the Neuberger collection show held last fall in New York at the Whitney Museum of American Art.

The display, occupying the museum's largest gallery, is St. Louis's most important summer exhibition. Presenting several knotty exhibition problems because of its diversity, it has been ingeniously and effectively arranged by William N. Eisenstat Jr., assistant to the director of the museum.

To facilitate comparison of pictures by the same artists, the museum's own American moderns are in an adjoining gallery, No. 18.

Members of the touring group, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Neuberger of New York, differ from most other art lovers in several refreshing ways. Not the least of their engaging qualities is the zestful way they share their treasures with the public through outright gifts to small museums and through constant loans. Four other cities are on the traveling show's itinerary.

At a time when it seems more fashionable to shop abroad for art than to buy American, the Neuberger's overwhelming enthusiasm for almost all things American, as reflected in the show, suggests the courage of their convictions.

Pioneering in U.S. Moderns. Begun in 1937, their collection is one of the earliest devoted exclusively to twentieth-century American art. It has been assembled with discernment and catholicity of taste such as only the more progressive professionals in museum work ordinarily attain.

Range of styles in the touring show is from Stuart Davis's deliberate, calculated disposition of shapes in "The Barber Shop" to Jackson Pollock's rhythmic, apparently automatic tracery in "No. 8."

Other extremes include Loren Maciver's athen, poignant likeness of the clown Emmett Kelly in a doleful mood and Hyman Bloom's celebration of a bride in flaming hues. For contrast of art and illustration, see Ben Shahn's powerful "Blind Accordion Player" and Peter Hurd's facile "The Boy from the Plains."

By Carl Holty, former member of the Washington University faculty, there is a large, abstract "Carousel," one of the show's comparatively few non-figurative works.

The sculptures are David Hare's whimsical semi-abstract, "Baby Elephant," in bronze, and David Smith's cubist "Billiard Player," in steel, derived not more from the player than from acrobatic motions of the same itself.

List of Exhibitors. Other exhibitors, tipping the scales slightly against abstraction and in favor of expressionism and abstract expressionism, follow:

Milton Avery, William Bazotes, Ben-Zion, Byron Browne, Raiston Crawford, Charles Demuth, Preston Dickinson, Arthur G. Dove, Seymour Chwast, Philip Evergood, Lyonel Feininger, Lee Gatch, Adolph Gottlieb, Morris Graves, Louis Guglielmi, Marsden Hartley, Hans Hofmann, Edward Hopper, Herbert Katzman, William Kienbusch, Jonah Kingstein, Karl Knaths, Jacob Lawrence, Jack Levine, John Marin, Alfred Maurer, Hans Moller, Randall Morgan, George L. K. Morris, Georgia O'Keeffe, I. Rice Pereira, Horace Pippin, Abraham Rattner, Charles Sheeler, Niles Spencer, Saul Steinberg, Joseph Stella, Rufino Tamayo, Mark Tobey and Max Weber.

In an illustrated exhibition catalogue, which is on sale at the museum at 60 cents a copy, Mr. and Mrs. Neuberger tell of the criteria they employ in adding to their collection. The statement makes explicit their leaning toward expressionism. "Composition, draftsmanship

'Reformed' Bolt Takes 3rd Title This Year

Stays Calm, Collected --$2400 at St. Paul

ST. PAUL, Minn., July 11 (UP)—Tommy Bolt, the reformed "bad boy" of golf, was the new St. Paul Open golf champion today because he confined his "thunder" to his drives.

The fiery, 36-year-old Texan, who used to smash clubs and lose tournaments, played it calm in the 72-hole meet here and it paid off with the title—his third this year—and $2400.

He blasted from three strokes behind Sunday to edge little Jerry Barber of Los Angeles by two strokes and win with a 19-under-par 269.

Bolt came within three strokes of the tourney record of 266 by Lloyd Mangrum in 1951 and Cary Middlecoff in 1952.

Barber, who had fired a record 129 on the first two rounds and led until the last nine holes, was second and took $1950.

"I've learned you don't win by getting excited," Bolt said. "I really had to play hard. Jerry is a fine golfer and I almost had to run my heels off to catch him."

Credits Hogan.

Bolt also gave credit to Ben Hogan for helping him improve his drives when they were in Fort Worth, Tex., a month ago. He apparently also picked up some of Hogan's coolness.

The hard-driving Texan, playing out of Chattanooga, Tenn., this year, added the title to earlier ones from Tucson and San Diego.

Arnold Palmer, Latrobe, Pa., and Fred Hawkins, St. Andrews, Ill., tied for third with 273.

Wally Ulrich of Rochester, Minn., was fifth with 276, and Dow Finsterwald of Bedford Heights, O., and Doug Ford of Kiamasha Lake, N.Y., tied for sixth with 277.

Barber, who floundered in the final round, congratulated Bolt with a smile and told the gallery, "He's not a bad boy at all."

Barber had set a record pace in the first half of the tournament. He fired 63-66 and led Palmer by three strokes and Bolt by four.

In the third round, Barber fired 69 for 191. Bolt moved up to second with a 68 for 201.

Barber Shoots 38.

But in Sunday's final round, Bolt was hot and Barber cold. On the first nine Barber shot 36 to Bolt's 35 and still led by two.

But Bolt crashed through with 32 in the stretch while Barber stumbled to a 38.

"I played just as bad today as I did good the first three rounds," the pint-sized Californian said.

Behind the first seven finishers were Bud Holscher, Apple Valley, Calif., and Bob Rossburg, San Francisco, with 278.

Bunched at 279 were Dave Douglas, Newark, Del.; Mike Souelak, Grossinger, N.Y.; Porky Oliver, Lemont, Ill.; Billy Maxwell, Odessa, Tex.; Jerry Kesselring, Toronto, Canada; and Art Wall Jr., Pocomo Manor, Pa.

Sam Sneed of White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., had 280.

Germans Retain Title.

DORTMUND, Germany, July 11 (AP)—Germany defeated Switzerland 25-13 to win the 1955 world handball championship here yesterday. Halftime score was 11-7. Some 45,000 spectators saw the fast and thrilling match in Rote Erde Stadium. The title defending Germans dominated throughout.

U.S. Olympic Soccer Trials In October

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 11 (UP)—Edward Sullivan of Philadelphia, re-elected president of the United States Soccer Football Association, announced today that plans are being worked out for the United States Olympic soccer team tryouts to include both collegiate and armed services players.

Sullivan, speaking at the close of a two-day session of the association's thirty-ninth annual meeting, said it was expected that the trials will be held next October and November. The Olympic games will be held in Melbourne in 1956.

Sullivan also told 150 delegates that a zone elimination system, the first to be used in the Olympics, was worked out for the Olympic soccer entries. He said four countries would receive byes and that the other 24 have been paired off in 12 pairings.

Each pairing plays a two-game home-and-home series. The winners, a total of 16 teams including the four byes, will go to Melbourne.

Sullivan said the United States meets Mexico in a zone match in March and May of 1956.

The U.S.S.F.A. president also said the group is attempting to arrange an international series of matches between Canada and the United States. The plan is waiting approval of the Football Association of Canada, he said. In elections held yesterday, all U.S.S.F.A. officers were re-elected to one-year terms. In addition to Sullivan, John F. Paige, of Washington, Pa., first vice-president; Walter Rech-steiner, of Los Angeles, second vice-president; J. Eugene Ringsdorf, of Baltimore, third vice-president; Hobson, treasurer, and Joseph J. Barriskill, of New York, executive secretary, were all re-named.

He has been a music student and will major in instrumental music at the university. Simms, 16, has accepted a $4000 scholarship to Yale University instead of a $4000 award to Howard University School of Engineering. He received a $325 supplementary scholarship from the service to aid Negro students and another of $200 from Sigma Alpha Psi fraternity. He plans to study electrical engineering.

A supplementary award of $100 given to Miss Harvey, 16. She also has received scholarships for $750 to Bradley University, $400 to Illinois, and $400 to Drake University.

uniting Germany but force Germany to be neutral.

President Eisenhower and Eden have kept on saying: We won't break up NATO; America won't desert Europe; reunite Germany but give Germany complete freedom to decide itself whether it will or will not join with the West.

It is at this point that Eden, obviously with Washington's assent, offers a new basis for discussion somewhere between these extremes. Moscow wants to make some headway at Geneva, his proposals may well provide the most significant new ingredient which can make the Big Four talks productive.

The heart of his idea is this: If Moscow will permit unconditionally free elections in a united Germany, the West will agree to reduction, supervision and control of all armaments and armed forces on the continent of Europe—western and eastern—and to NATO and a united reformed Germany shall not constitute a threat to Soviet security.

Under the Eden plan, the Soviet Union would participate in inspecting and supervising an agreed neutralized Germany. That is what Eden calls extending the principles of the Western European Union eastward and he points out that the nations participating in WEU are already carrying out a system of voluntary inspection, inspection and control of armaments in Europe.

Eden recognizes that the Soviet Union would see Germany united with some anxiety and his purpose is to offer something solid to remove that anxiety. One related idea he has advanced in Washington. That is the possibility that NATO countries, including Germany, would militarily neutralize East Germany and guarantee to place neither troops nor arms there if Moscow will accept free elections and unification.

Eden began his speech by remarking that thus far he had said less about Geneva than any one else who was going, but it was obvious that this was a calculated move to draw the Soviet news agency, Tass, and short-story writers into the Kremlin. He said he thought these ideas were worth study by everybody and then added extemporaneously: "worth study by everybody on which ever side of the iron curtain they happen to find themselves."

severe public pressure, the experts think that the Russians are now out-producing this country by a narrow margin.

The grim efficiency of the rough and ready methods is typified by that hangar at Ramenskoye. And by our habit of pouring our resources into Cadillac while the Soviets concentrate the world's second industrial economy almost fully on war production. These explain the fact that the Soviets are now seizing the lead in the air that used to belong to the United States. This is both a major scandal and a bleak threat to the survival of the nation. It demands more detailed consideration.

HAPPY LOSER

Greg Waldron, his mouth bulging with watermelon, tries his best to defeat the competition at a watermelon eating contest at Monticello, Fla. His efforts were in vain, for he was edged out by the speedy swallowing of another contestant. Greg was not too worried about losing. Eating so much watermelon was reward enough, he felt.

MANACLED SWIM FROM ALCATRAZ

Jack LaLanne of Oakland, Calif., taking a deep breath on his two-mile swim from a point near Alcatraz Island Prison to Fishermen's Wharf in San Francisco yesterday. He made the swim with his wrists handcuffed together, and at each downward thrust of his manacled arms, his head was submerged. LaLanne swam the distance in less than one hour. The warden of Alcatraz said he was still convinced that no prisoner could swim to freedom from the prison.

TV Puts the Heat On Summer Schedule

By John Crosby

THE summer doldrums are not with us in the ordinary sense this year as they have been in past years. For one thing, the comedians while their shows have gone off the air, seem to be working like lunatics.

GEORGE GOBEL

mess of reruns. In fact, some evenings it was hard to find anything on the air that wasn't a rerun of a show that had been on the air during the winter. Well, this practice is by no means ended, but there is less of it this year.

THE VIEWER has a wider choice of new and original material, especially drama. As usual, Robert Montgomery, Kraft, Lux and Philco-Goodyear stay on all summer on NBC as does "Studio One" on CBS. However, this year there are some added starters in the one-hour dramatic field. "Climax" and "U.S. Steel Hour" will both stay on all summer long. There should be plenty of new dramatic fare for everyone.

NBC, which usually takes it a little easier in the summertime, is bristling with expensive ideas for this summer. The network will have at least six spectaculars on the air during July and August. Last year there weren't any. "Colgate Comedy Hour," which usually goes off for the summer, has been replaced by the fairly ambitious "Colgate Variety Hour" which plans a bunch of salutes to Broadway shows and their composers and writers.

On CBS such regulars as "Toasts of the Town," "General Electric Theater," "What's My Line," "Arthur Godfrey's Talent Scouts," "64,000 Question," "I've Got a Secret," "Four Star Playhouse," "Beat the Clock," and "Two for the Money" (with Sam Levenson replacing Herb Shriner) will be around all summer.

VIEWING is supposed to fall off sharply during the summer, but this year both networks and advertisers are willing to bet that there's still a sizable audience around the set. Last year there were about 30,000,000 sets in use with an estimated 65,000,000 viewers. This year that figure has risen to 108,000,000 viewers, and they can't all be at the beach.

For some reason or other summer has always been dedicated to music, whether it's an outdoor concert or a radio replacement. (Years ago, dozens of radio shows were replaced simply by bands.) Boldest entrant in this regard is Jackie Gleason's replacement, "America's Greatest Bands," which is a very pleasant program if you like popular music.

JUST ABOUT EVERY TYPE of popular music known to man will be on that show before the summer is out. On the opening show there was a mélange of Dixieland supplied by Bob Crosby and band and very good, too, swing and sway by Sammy Kaye, which wasn't as bad as usual, the strange noises and sound effects and rhythms of Sauter and Finegan, and finally the good old-fashioned solid—I suppose the cats would call it slightly square—music of Paul Whiteman playing "Valencia."

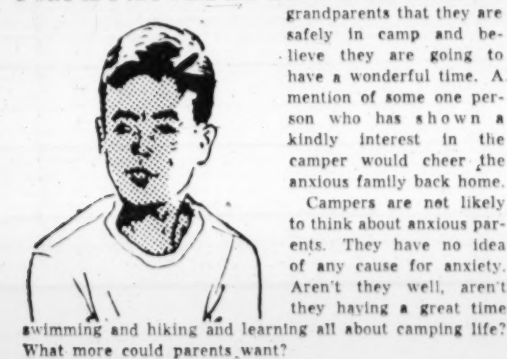

No one has yet managed to make a hand in action especially interesting to look at, but they did their best. At any rate, the old days, when everyone took it easy in the summer, are apparently over—for this summer at least.

A Weekly Letter

By Angelo Patri

BOYS and girls who go to the camp for the summer have a duty to perform. They should write a letter to their home folks every weekend. On arrival they should write a word on a card which tells their father and mother and grandparents that they are safely in camp and believe they are going to have a wonderful time. A mention of some one person who has shown a kindly interest in the camper would cheer the anxious family back home.

swimming and hiking and learning all about camping life? What more could parents want?

THEY WANT THE PERSONAL ASSURANCE from the camper that he is really well, that he is enjoying his stay, that he likes the people about him, that he gets good food and that he sleeps well. They want, too, to hear about his daily doings and about the boys or girls that are in the same hut with their camper.

Camp days are full but there is always that free hour. Instead of chatting to the camp fellows, why not start the weekly letter? A bit written each day makes a fuller and more interesting letter than the one forced from the camper late Sunday evening under the threat, "No letter, no supper."

Neglect of the weekly letter home is not a very nice attitude on the camper's part. We would expect a more gracious recognition of home and family from him. We would expect some thought of appreciation of the effort it cost father and mother to afford him this delightful summer.

WHAT TO WRITE ABOUT? First the camper himself, his happiness, his skills, his successes, his enjoyment of the people, the air and the water and the sky and the birds and the trees. All these count. Then there are stories of adventure—the night stay on the mountain, the callers from the woods, like the hedgehogs and the skunks and the stray cats.

One strong Don't. Don't write a list of complaints. Forget about the mosquito bites, don't mention the skinned knee that the nurse took care of, don't say you were so homesick you cried yourself to sleep. If you did, keep it to yourself and get over it by taking a swim. Don't cheer for yourself if you broke the rules and got out of bed to have a party. (Your parents might lose faith in you if you did.) Write a little daily, happily, gladly.

History of The Clinical Thermometer

By Glen Shepherd, M.D.

THE next time a nurse pops that little thermometer under your tongue, you might realize the great improvement that has been made in the instrument. The first thermometer had a crooked tube the slightest long with a golf-ball-sized bulb for the mouth and the other end in a glass of water. When the air in the big bulb became warmed to body temperature, it pushed the water down in the other end of the crooked tube.

An Italian named Sanctorius first used this contraption on people in 1625. It wasn't of any use for sick persons who couldn't bend over a table and hold the huge bulb in the mouth. It was the first instance of body temperature being measured by anything except the hand.

AS USUALLY HAPPENS with such new and clumsy devices, no one else paid it the slightest attention. No one then cared about measuring body functions. Doctors didn't even count the pulse.

About 90 years later, a German named Fahrenheit put mercury into the thermometer and made it shorter, about a foot long. It wasn't until another 100 years had gone by before any doctor thought there might be some use in measuring body temperature. Two German doctors of the nineteenth century started using thermometers on their patients.

It must have been terrifying to have Ludwig Traube or Karl Wunderlick walk up and put what looked like a short glass cane in the mouth or under an arm. It took more than five minutes for the 10-inch-long instrument to register the temperature.

IT MUST HAVE SEEMED like a lot of nonsense at first to want to know how high the fever was, for couldn't a doctor tell that with the back of his hand? But the patients were too sick to care or perhaps they thought it was a magic wand. The idea of magic was still alive and very real.

By 1867, a few English hospitals were using thermometers even though they were clumsy. Fevers were still thought of as the disease rather than just the general effect of an infection or a disease. The ideas about germs hadn't yet spread much beyond France, where Pasteur was discovering them.

An ingenious English doctor decided that he wasn't going to bother with sticking such big instruments into people's mouths any longer. So Sir Clifford Allbutt invented the pocket clinical thermometer the following year. It looked much like the one in use today.

By now, doctors were learning that fever is the sign of an infection and not a disease itself. By turning their attention to the causes of fever, to the germs and then the viruses, the ground work was laid for modern medicine—for discovering how to prevent the infections with immunization and how to kill the germs with serums, then the sulfa drugs, and finally with penicillin and the new antibiotics.

1. WOMEN CAN DO ANY WORK MEN DO. YOUR OPINION.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 1. ACCORDING TO THE U.S. Department of Labor, women can do any work a man can do, and they are bringing home checks to prove it. The "new look at women's work" shows they are "not taking over from the men, but they are contributing their own skills and aptitudes." Among the last male frontiers to fall are railroad jobs and firemen. In brief: "Employment of women has increased in all occupations except household workers and farmers."

ANSWER TO QUESTION 2. No, not without a psychologist to interpret them for you, any more than X-ray pictures of your "innards" tell you your health without a doctor to interpret them. Suppose you had a score of 40 for salesmanship. You would not know whether this was good or poor, or how any score fits your education, personality, energy, courage, ambitions, etc. Nobody can give himself a test and tell what it means.

ANSWER TO QUESTION 3. True. There are many such people. They are always left out in the cold, floundering around as lone wolves and unhappy. Getting along with people is the greatest science and art in the world. Anyone can learn. Rule 1: "You must never puncture anyone's ego." Rule 2: "You must make the other fellow believe in you."

Secrets of Charm

Getting Rid of Bulges

LONG TORSO FASHIONS ARE FIGURE REVEALERS.

MOST of the "bulging girls" are biggest through the middle—the abdomen and hips. These rolls spoil the line and effect of any costume. Let's make them disappear so you can be proud of the reflection you see in the mirror. Start to do following special exercises daily.

If your tummy looks like it's going to get to your destination ahead of you, here is an exercise you can do anywhere—on the bus, when you're pounding a typewriter or peeling the potatoes. Pull in your tummy, as hard as you can and count "one." Now, pull in some more and count "two." Finally, pull in and up as hard as you can on the count of "three." Hold it for about 10 seconds. Relax. That's all. Isn't that simple?

Now here's one (that's not so easy) for both the abdomen and the hips. But, you'll be amazed at the results. Ready? Lie on your back, arms extended, shoulder level with hands flat on floor and toes pointed away from body. Bend knees and bring legs up so knees rest on chest.

Fix It Yourself

Weak Floors. A S most of you know, the simplest way to stiffen a floor that vibrates when it's walked across is to install a girder under the floor joists and then support this at eight foot intervals or less with steel columns or posts. Trouble with this method is that the posts break up the basement floor area and you may not be able to do the job by yourself. There are, however, other ways to stiffen a floor and they'll work in a good many cases.

One way to stiffen a floor is to install cross bridging between the joists. This consists of 1 in. by 3 in. wood strips nailed between each joist to form an "X". There should be a row of bridging in any span of joists over 8 feet. The purpose of this bridging is to distribute the weight on the floor over several of the floor joists and also to stiffen the joists and prevent them bending over.

Another trick for floors is to reinforce the joists. This is done by sawing a 2 in. by 4 in. to each side of the joist so the bottom edge of the 2 in. by 4 in. comes flush with the bottom edge of the joists. The ends of the 2 in. by 4 in. should rest on solid masonry—the foundation wall—and the ends should be treated with a wood preservative so they won't decay.

Some floors are weak because notches have been cut in the underside of the joists so that pipes could be set up into the joists. These notches can be covered over with metal straps which help give the joist strength.

HYDE PARK, WHAT a delightful picture that was in the newspapers the other day of New York's Mayor Wagner and his wife being greeted on their return from Europe by their son, Duncan. I am sure that this tour of seven countries has given the Mayor many new ideas on the subject of how to meet the problems that occur in New York city. But it must also be encouraging to know that he is not the only person to be confronted with difficulties. All men in public office must have times when they feel that they alone face the most serious problems, and have to bear more burdens than any other human being.

Secretary Dulles has told the Congress that he feels the Soviet Union "is over-extended at the present time," particularly in its economic commitments. He feels that keeping up with the free world has meant denying to the Soviet people what we would consider elemental necessities; and since our economy has not collapsed as they fervently hoped it would, the Soviets are now obliged to seek ways of improving living conditions for their people. It is on this basis that Mr. Dulles explains their changed actions.

FOR A VERY GREAT CHURCHMAN, it seems to me strange that Mr. Dulles never emphasizes the fact that the spiritual lack in the Soviet philosophy is a very serious drawback. They have tried to substitute materialism and love of state for a spiritual belief and a love of God, and they are finding it is not the same. It is interesting to me in reading the speeches from San Francisco during the United Nations celebration to see how much more emphasis the delegate from Lebanon, Charles Malik, and the delegate from India, Krishna Menon, gave to the spiritual side in their approach to world conditions today. One would think that the President and his Secretary of State would realize that the prayers of our people would have to be very fervent in order to make us win as we engage during the next few months in the type of war which is not a war.

Stewart Alsop, in a recent column from Moscow, seems to have developed a real feeling of sympathy for the Russian ladies, who have so often hoped for extra things—such as wearing apparel—and so often have been disappointed. Some of them probably do need this sympathy. But I have a feeling some of them are made to feel that whatever they endure is a gift from their country and therefore they take this gift with a great deal of calm.

THE INSPIRING tributes extended to Helen Keller (on her recent 75th birthday) are exceeded by her magnificent personal triumph. She touched a star she was unable to see and its radiance guided others. . . . Deprived of sight and sound, Helen Keller shattered the barriers and not only reached the world — but also its heart. The eloquent simplicity of her philosophy is worth pondering: "I am not an optimist; there's too much evil in the world and in me. Nor am I a pessimist; there is too much good in the world and in God. I believe that He wills to make the world better, and I try to do my bit to help and wish that it were more."

Mark Twain once said: "If you desire to discover the world Helen Keller lives in — try getting up some dark night on the wrong side of your bed when the house is on fire and try to find the door."

INGRID BERGMAN'S press conferences suggest that she is a lady of changing moods. Some interviewers have produced tear-soaked revelations about Ingrid's alleged melancholia, while others breathlessly report she is happy-happy. . . . The strangest aspect of Ingrid's career has been an ironic tragedy. Her greatest blessing had the saddest consequences. She was gifted with a wholesome beauty — which conveys a deep sense of innocence. She is the lovely, healthy girl with the wind rippling her golden tresses. As a result, the public image of Ingrid was almost saintly. When she demonstrated human weaknesses, the image and her career were shattered.

IT IS REASONABLY SAFE to assume that movie queens are human. The public, nevertheless, sees them in terms of radiant visions — in Technicolor. That is partly the fault of high-pressure exploitation and chiefly the result of magical personalities. . . . Joan Crawford has been the very model of a modern major glamor gal. Until her recent marriage, she could derive no joy from stardom. Joan was lonely and frustrated. The February Woman's Home Companion carried Joan's confession: "I've never known a man I could lean on, could talk to, could share with, could feel protected by. One of the penalties of being a strong woman is that even men are prone to rely on her. They sense my strong maternal need to give. They don't always sense the other needs, the basic female need to lean a little — and give a lot."

A THESPIAN'S JOURNEY to the stars is often more amazing than science-fiction. Ernest ("Marty") Borgnine's rocket-launching is recorded in Collier's. . . . Upon being discharged from the Navy in 1945, he intended making a career of peddling frozen foods or air-conditioning. Appraised of her son's conflicting ambitions, his mother remarked wryly: "Ernie, did you ever think of taking up acting?" You always enjoyed making a fool of yourself. Ernest replied: "Mom, you've got something there." So he enrolled in a drama school. The rest, as the saying goes, is happy history.

Good Dating Rules

By Dr. Paul Popenoe

MANY a young man complains that he is not popular with the girls, and many girls complain about him for the same reason. "I recently joined an organization where there are a great many unmarried men," Linda informs me. "I thought I was taking out insurance on a good social life, but every date I have had has been a washout. I don't expect to go out with fellows who are intellectual giants or artistic geniuses."

DR. PAUL POPENOE

make the same complaint. Can't you tell these boys a few things, Dr. Popenoe?"

GLADLY, LINDA. I'll pass on to whom it may concern, the objectionable dating traits (in order of importance) which Purdue University girls told to sociologist Harold Christensen. He lists them in his book, "Marriage Analysis."

Telling off-color jokes and using profanity or vulgarity. Staying too late on a date, not knowing when to say goodnight.

Wanting too much necking or petting. Being crude and unrefined in manners, lacking etiquette, and forgetting the common courtesies.

Using dishonest flattery, stringing the other a "line," and trying to be a person of many loves.

Being disrespectful of the opposite sex, making slurring remarks and taking advantage.

BEING WEAK IN THE SOCIAL ARTS such as dancing, bridge, sports and the like.

Being overtalkative and loud around others, a "show-off," full of "smart" slang.

Being careless in dress and mannerisms, sloppy appearance.

Being overly self-assured, egotistical, blind to own shortcomings, acting as if doing partner a favor.

Being unthinking in offering compliments or saying thanks, taking others for granted, inattentive and inconsiderate.

Being overbearing, stubborn, impatient, bossy, always wanting own way, complaining, arguing.

Being too staid, conventional, dull, lacking glamour and "sparkle."

There you are, young men! Guilty or not guilty?

Try and Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

EDWIN BOOTH, stage immortal, did not lack for competition when he was at the height of his career. P. T. Barnum was featuring the "handsomest fat girl" (18 years old, weight 618 pounds) and the "tiniest" (25 inches tall, 30 pounds), not to mention a living whale and hippopotamus. "The Black Crook" was making men-about-town tight as a drum; Augustin Daly was providing lurid melodrama at 10 to 30 cents a ticket.

A.D. 1868 also marked the year when "burlesque" made its debut in New York, and gents began preferring blondes. And at a ball game in Brooklyn, between the local Athletics and the Philadelphia Athletics, 30,000 fans turned out, completely overflowing the field and stopping the game after one inning. Refunds were made, but not until a real riot was narrowly averted.

'Meet Mr. Eisenhower'

White House - 'The Old Salt Mine'

President's Vacations Are His Escapes, but It Still Is Difficult to Get a Rest

By Merriman Smith

DENVER HOME OF MRS. JOHN S. DOUD . . . THIS HOUSE WAS TRULY "HOME" FOR THE EISENHOWERS DURING THE MANY YEARS THEY WERE STATIONED ACROSS THE COUNTRY AND THE WORLD ON ARMY DUTY.

Second installment from the book, "Meet Mister Eisenhower," published by Harper and Bros. The author is dean of the White House reporters.

IT didn't take long after the inauguration to learn that President Eisenhower was God's gift to the luggage industry. Chief executives before him moaned about being prisoners of the White House, but not this man. He began to refer to his official abode as "the old salt mine," but he did something about it.

It was only a matter of months after he took office before Washington was referred to 1600 Pennsylvania Avenue as "the temporary White House." Summer, winter and so-called vacation White Houses began to spring up all over the land.

After a little more than a year in office, Ike was hailed with civic pride and virtually as a home-town product by Denver, Colo.; Augusta, Ga.; Palm Springs, Calif.; Gettysburg, Pa.; even Rapid City, S.D.

In his first year in office, Mr. Eisenhower covered more than 37,000 miles and was out of town 116 days. This does not include the Korean trip before he was sworn in as President.

With the exception of a few of the overnight trips to the western Maryland mountains and one weekend in Georgia, I covered this mileage with him. Mr. Eisenhower is not unlike many Presidents before him in the way he bridges at having to stay for lengthy, unbroken periods within the confines of the White House. This doesn't mean he dislikes the presidency. He just doesn't like being penned up.

F. D. R. was much the same way. He spent as many as 14 straight weekends in Hyde Park during the warmer months.

These excursions were on top of frequent Potomac river and Chesapeake bay yacht trips, a month or two a year in Warm Springs and occasional cruises at sea aboard a Navy cruiser.

Ike seems to follow a travel cycle. He rarely spends more than three or four weeks straight in town, even if he has to undertake the labor of a speech to get away for as little as one day. He spends six or more weeks of the late summer in Denver when Washington sinks into the doldrums of uncomfortable heat and humidity. Now that his house in Gettysburg is completed, he may spend more weekends there than F.D.R. put in at Hyde Park.

In Denver, the President and Mamie stay with her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, in a comfortable and surprisingly modest eight-room, gray brick house at 750 Lafayette street. Mr. and Mrs. Ike courted in the swing on the porch and the house was truly "home" to them during the many years they were stationed across the country and the world on Army duty.

Ike's life in Denver is split between four areas—home activities at the Doud house, office work at Lowry Air Force Base, where a miniature White House office can be established on short notice, golf at the Cherry Hills country club, and fishing on the ranches of friends in such small mountain communities as Fraser and Pine.

ONCE met one of Mrs. Doud's neighbors at a Denver social function and asked how the nation's First Mother-in-Law was taking the President's visit.

"Ike is old folks to Mrs. Doud," said the neighbor. "She loves having him there, but there is one drawback. She loves to go to the dog races, but she doesn't think she should go to the track while he's here. You know, there'd probably be pictures and all that sort of thing and she hates publicity. But she was going to the track almost every night before you people came out here."

If the President stays in Denver any length of time, the Air Force sets up White House offices on two floors of the handsome cream-colored administration building at Lowry field. This is "the Denver White House"—that is the way the special Signal Corps switchboard for the President answers incoming calls. The board handles an average of 3000 calls a day when the President is in Denver.

Most mornings in Denver, the President works in the office three or four hours. Usually before noon, he comes down in an elevator held for his use, scoots through the back door of the building into the car again, bound this time for the Cherry Hills country club, a quick lunch and 18 holes of golf. He tries to play at least three or four times a week, but his average was not that high his first summer in Denver because of a sore elbow.

We were curious in 1953 why Ike failed to play at the Denver country club. He must have been invited. When we returned to Washington, however, we heard what might have been a clue.

Some of the members were quoted as being sharply critical of Ike's failure to lower taxes as rapidly as they thought it should be done. Some of them were quoted as saying the President was too close to "the Democratic left."

By and large, Mamie uses her time in Denver to recover from the rigors a First Lady must endure during the Washington winter and spring social seasons. She also takes this opportunity to store up energy for the crowded fall schedule at the White House.

In 1953, there was disturbing talk around Denver because during the first few weeks of their stay Mamie remained inside her home. Some of her so-called friends gossiped liberally that she was sick. The truth was that Mamie was downright tired. She luxuriated in three weeks of complete loafing.

Their stay-at-home policy fails to protect the family from a flood of invitations when they're in Colorado. Mamie must put in hours every day with her secretary, Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffrey, answering (and declining) many invitations and thanking people for the many gifts sent to the Eisenhowers. Mrs. Ann Whitman, the President's personal secretary, also must spend a lot of time at the same chore.

So many hospitable citizens of Colorado wanted the President for speaking dates, barbecues and their favorite fishing streams, he first turned out Mamie as they pass in and out of the building.

One Sunday, I got to church late and found the seating situation beyond hope. Consequently, I stood outside during the services. One of the deacons came out for a breath of air. He also had no seat, and once he helped take up the offering, his official duties were over.

We were beneath a huge oak tree, looking at the crowd waiting along the street and in the yard of the church for a fleeting glimpse of the Eisenhowers. "Just look at that crowd, would you?" said the deacon. "I think more Methodists and Baptists than Presbyterians tried to get in there today. One old lady said she was a member of our congregation—came up to the door just as the service started and barged on in. She said old Ike and the FBI could not keep her from God."

A deacon spotted a friend in the crowd. "Hey, Charlie, why don't you go to your own church?" he called.

Charlie sauntered over to us, chuckling in good nature. "I'll tell you," Charlie said with resignation. "I promised my wife and kids they'd get a look at Old Ike while he's down here this time, and this is the only place in town where they could see him unless they stand out on the airport road for hours on the day he goes back."

Before the Republican National Committee denounces me for having someone in this book refer to "old Ike," it should be pointed out that "old" is a term of affection in many parts of the South.

CHARLIE in his easygoing way described the problem of many Augustans. The people of the town, particularly the business men, are delighted to have the President in their midst. But they wish he would show himself to the public at something more than the tiny church and the hard-to-get-to Augusta National.

The President certainly does not go to Augusta to be on public display. He goes there to relax. If he started accepting local invitations, the Southern hospitality eventually would drive him from the place. More Georgians understand that now than they did in 1953.

Very few tourists ever saw Mr. Truman in Key West unless they got up with the birds and chanced upon him during an early-morning walk. He lived in heavily-guarded seclusion on a naval reservation behind a fence heavier than Ike's at Augusta, plus a line of tough Marine sentries. He rarely left the naval base even for church, but went to services in the Navy chapel.

IT'S A RELAXED MR. EISENHOWER AS HE DEPARTS FROM PLANE FOR A HOLIDAY WITH FAMILY AND ENERGETIC GRANDCHILDREN.

TEMPORARY PRESS HEADQUARTERS DURING AN EISENHOWER VACATION. NOTE THE REWHONNIE SIGN. IF YOU CAN SPELL BACKWARD YOU'LL GET IT.

What was true of H.S.T. in Key West applies to Ike in Augusta—he prefers the company of his own crowd. He can say what he pleases, behave as he wants in the clubhouse dining room of the National, and the members regard his most superficial, social chit-chat as top secrets of the nation.

Any President would prefer 15 minutes of fool-proof relaxation with friends to two hours of a civic barbecue, except, of course, in an election year.

Contract Bridge

By Ely Culbertson

MOST declarers seem obsessed with the idea of getting out the trumps, and fast, in almost every situation, and when they are playing a slam contract their haste is usually doubled and redoubled. It is hard to say just what the psychological explanation for this quirk is, but one thing is sure: it is often a costly quirk. For example:

North dealer North-South vulnerable.

♠ A	♥ KQJ	♦ AQ109752	♣ A6
NORTH
♠ 92	♥ 53	♦ J86	♣ Q108542
EAST
♠ KQJ	♥ 742	♦ K	♣ 1084
SOUTH
♠ J7653	♥ A10986	♦ 43	♣ K

The bidding:
North East South West
2♠ Pass 2♥ Pass
3♥ Pass 3♦ Pass
4♥ Pass 4♠ Pass
6♥ Pass 6♠ Pass

West opened the unbid suit, clubs, and South won with the blank king. Three rounds of trumps swiftly followed, ending in the closed hand, and South then finessed to the queen of diamonds. East won with his blank king and shifted to a low spade.

Now South had quite a problem. The play was in dummy, and though the club ace was still there, the lack of any club in the South hand for a communication card made the establishment of the diamond suit a baffling problem. As the cards lay, of course, South could have ruffed the club ace and then finessed the jack of diamonds, but with no knowledge of the distribution, it seemed just as propitious to lay down the diamond ace on the chance of dropping the jack. The jack did not fall, however, and South went down three tricks.

The markedly correct line of play was to cash only the queen and jack of hearts, then to lead the diamond ace. With the king falling, the rest of the play would be elementary, but even if the king did not fall, declarer could discard his second diamond on the club ace, ruff a diamond, go back to the heart king and, if necessary, ruff another diamond to set up the entire suit. The spade ace would provide final entry to dummy.

Egg White Beating

When recipe directs you to whip egg whites until they are "stiff but not dry," beat the whites until they stand in stiff peaks whose points do not lop over. The air bubbles in the egg whites should be tiny and even.

Custard Sauce

When you prepare a gelatin dessert that calls for egg whites, use the yolks in a soft custard sauce. Serve the sauce with the gelatin dessert or with a fresh fruit compote.

Social Activities

Mid-Summer Activities Of St. Louisans in East

By Martha Strickler Kieffer

NEW YORK, July 11. NEW YORK conversation this past week has almost completely revolved around the intense heat wave that has swept the eastern seaboard. The current scorcher persuaded many New Yorkers to remain at resorts after the Fourth of July holidays and caused those returning to seek the soothing comfort of air-conditioning. While the official temperature readings have been in the middle and upper 90's, the mercury has risen to 105 in certain areas, enough to make many visitors wish that they had stayed at home.

ADA WELD arrived from a three-month tour of Europe last Tuesday amid the steam and humidity. Her ship — the United States — docked at 8 in the morning with several other ocean liners, causing the usual hullabaloo along the shores of the Hudson.

After weathering the ordeal of customs, Ada taxied over to the apartment of MR. AND MRS. EDWARD S. FUNSTEN JR. for a few days' visit. Wednesday the traveler took a train to Riverdale to spend the afternoon and evening with CLAIRE (WERNER) AND HARRY HENRIQUES and the following day she boarded a plane for St. Louis.

Ted and de Lancey Moser Funsten returned to New York just in time for Ada's arrival. They came back by train late last Monday night from Salter's Point, Mass., where they spent the long holiday weekend with Ted's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Funsten Sr. Mr. and Mrs. Funsten opened their house at Salter's several weeks ago and will remain there for the summer.

Hanford Smith Family at Nantucket.

JOINING the many New Yorkers making a mass exodus to summer resorts are CAROL AND HANFORD SMITH and their two young children. They departed this past weekend for Nantucket. Carol and young BROOKS AND LISA will be there for the remainder of the summer and Hanford will be among the weekend commuters to the island.

MR. AND MRS. J. RUSSELL FORGAN opened their summer house at Watch Hill several weeks ago and, aside from a few trips back to New York, will be there until September. Their daughter, ADA, is in Denver visiting friends at the moment but is expected to return to New York late this week. After a round of appointments and warm-weather shopping she will join her parents at Watch Hill.

Parties at Connecticut Beach Clubs.

INDEPENDENCE DAY weekend took Julie Desloge and her husband, JOE HAGGERTY JR., to Madison, Conn. Their host and hostess were MR. AND MRS. KENNETH MURCHISON of Dallas. Julie and the Murchisons' daughters, MRS. RICHARD OHNSTROM (Mary Murchison) and MRS. FRED HAMILTON (Jane Murchison) are former Villa Duchesne classmates.

Saturday night was dance night for the Madison beach clubs. The Murchison household and all its guests turned out en masse to the Madison Surf Club for an evening of gaiety. Among those spotted across the dance floor were SUSIE (KAMP) AND GIL COX, who live in Madison.

Julie's sister, KIKI DESLOGE MESLANS, was in town recently for a brief stay, highlighted by a viewing of "Boy Friend" and a stop at the Stork Club.

St. Louisans at Maine Resort.

ANCHOR HOLD, the Bar Harbor, Me., home of MR. AND MRS. GERALD M. BORDEN, is now running on its usual smooth summer schedule. Mr. and Mrs. Borden — she was Lucille Papin — left their 71st street apartment a few weeks ago and will be gone until after the Labor day weekend.

ANN COMPTON STEPHENS sailed for Germany recently after a visit in Scarsdale with her parents, MR. AND MRS. RANDOLPH P. COMPTON. In Augsburg, near Munich, she has joined her husband, ELLIS MAJOR STEPHENS. They will remain there while Ellis does a two-year stint with the Army. Ann and Ellis were married in California in early April.

Mr. and Mrs. Compton became grandparents a few weeks ago when young WILLIAM DANFORTH COMPTON was born June 15 at San Jose, Calif. The infant's parents are MR. AND MRS. JAMES RANDOLPH COMPTON.

September Wedding for Miss Hartnett.

The bride-elect has asked her sister, Miss Mary Lee Hartnett, to serve as maid of honor. Bridesmaids will be Miss Deborah Bair, a debutante of the past season; Miss Joanne Kearns, Miss Patricia Van Der Bosch, sister of the bridegroom-to-be, and two former classmates of Miss Hartnett at Barat College, Lake Forest, Ill., Miss Honey Fox of Chicago and Miss Patricia Atwell of Washington.

OPINION

Dear Martha:

MY daughter is 19 years old and is very unhappy just because I ask her to help keep the home presentable. She doesn't do one thing to help. I don't blame her for leaving her clothes lying around. She never cleans the bathroom and can tear up half the house getting ready to go out, then leaves things for me to pick up. If I say anything she is going to leave home because we don't love her, yet she knows in her heart we worship her. I do all her laundry but it seems she doesn't appreciate anything I do. MRS. O.K.

No wonder she doesn't appreciate it if you wait on her hand and foot. That's like giving a child too much candy. Why should you do her laundry or pick up after her? I don't blame you for wanting the house to be neat, despite her careless ways, but if you left her things around for awhile instead of slaving for her, she might realize her mistake. If she asks why she doesn't have a clean blouse, tell her if she wants it she'll have to wash it herself, that you're too busy to do it anymore. I don't think she's apt to leave home. She has it too good where she is.

Dear Martha:

I AM 27 YEARS OLD, the only bachelor in our office. A woman came to work for us about a year ago, and I'll admit that I fell for her and was really crazy about her for a few months. She is 34 and has been divorced. Well, I finally decided I didn't like her nearly as much as I thought I did, and stopped seeing her so often outside the office. But she keeps after me to go somewhere with her, and at the office she is constantly stopping by my desk and talking in a very friendly and familiar way. People around there know we have been dating, of course, and I feel like a heel dropping her but she annoys me now and I am getting so I don't want to have anything to do with her. What can I do to get rid of her outside of being downright rude?

DESPERATE.

I'm sure you agree now that you made a mistake by rushing her so much the first few months because she probably fell as hard for you as you did for her and can't understand why you're acting as you are. But be that as it may, it's far better to break with someone you know you can't care for than to keep on dating her out of sympathy. You'll just have to start refusing her invitations on and I think as far as the office is concerned you can tell her outright that it doesn't look well for employees to be talking so much. You don't have to be rude to do that.

IN ANSWER TO Marie: Your fiancé may choose his father as best man, although most boys ask their brothers, a brother, cousin or close friend to participate in the ceremony.

Husband's Career

By Josephine Lowman

WHAT can a wife do to help her husband up the ladder of success? Business psychologists say that attitude is probably the most important single factor. She should take an intelligent interest in his work. She should understand just what he is doing, what his potential is and what the demands and pressures are.

JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

In some instances just an appreciative understanding will be enough. In others she may be able to help in the performance of some duties. She may be most helpful in entertaining his fellow workers and superiors and by making social contacts for her husband. However, most of all, a perceptive warm attitude toward her husband's efforts and work will make for success, and for marital happiness.

The Fuller Brush Co. recently carried on an interesting project. Wives whose husbands qualified with a certain percentage of sales in one of the company's largest districts, were invited to respond to "Why I'm Glad My Husband Is a Fuller Brush Dealer."

The idea was to find out the attitude of some of the wives of the most successful dealers toward their husband's business. The results were quite interesting. A large percentage of the wives responded. They said things like "There is nothing more rewarding than having your husband greet you and the children each evening, full of happiness and confidence, knowing he has enjoyed his day, not just existed," and, "My husband is bubbling over with enthusiasm, ideas and ambition, and this makes me very happy." Another, "I have never seen my husband in such fine physical condition. He has gained confidence in himself and is more relaxed and has gained much needed weight."

Compare these expressions of confidence and understanding with the "beating down" some men get at home at the end of a hard day. Other factors being equal, it is not difficult to pick the men most likely to succeed. Nor is it difficult to know which marriages will be happiest, and therefore which women will remain youthful long after the usual age for fading.

Social Problems

By Emily Post

A BOY writes: "Last Saturday I had a date with a girl for the first time. While not actually spoken about, she knew very well that we would at least go to a movie. After arriving at her home and being invited to take off my coat, we sat talking to her mother and father. Every minute I expected she would get her coat and hat. But we sat and talked and as a result the time came for me to go home instead of to the movies. Wasn't it up to her, Mrs. Post, to make the move to go?"

If you had a definite date with her to go to the movies, then she should have put on her hat and coat as soon as you arrived, and led the way to the front door. But if you had no definite engagement to go to a movie she quite possibly thought that you should have explained you had come to take her out.

DEAR MRS. POST: What are the proper decorations for a wedding breakfast? This will be limited to the families and everyone seated at a large table. May any color be used on this table even when the bride is wearing all white?

Answer: White is always the chosen color when possible. The chief decoration on the bridal table is the wedding cake always elaborately iced and placed in front of the bride and groom. In addition to this there are (as possible) white flowers.

Choice Meat Is Secret of Good Broiling

By Edith M. Barber

PLEASE tell me the secret of broiling without drying. This request comes from someone who signs herself "your regular reader," and I am glad to answer her question.

In regard to broiling, the first and perhaps most important point is the choice of meats that naturally respond to this method of cooking. Steaks, lamb chops and young chicken are the meats in this category. Thin sliced ham are another good choice. Veal and pork chops, after they have been broiled, are usually "braised" in a small amount of liquid, and in a covered pan, as they need further cooking.

The best method of broiling is undoubtedly on the rack of a pre-heated broiler. If you are preparing a very small steak or one or two chops, a heavy skillet on the top of a burner may be used. It is then necessary to pour off fat as it accumulates. Otherwise the meat will dry out and lose flavor.

IF YOU USE THE BROILER of your range, the meat must be arranged on the rack. You will not get good results if you place the meat in a pan and slip that under the broiler. I have known cooks to do this to avoid having to wash the broiler.

While some of the meat experts advise broiling under a low flame, I belong with a number of other good cooks, to a group that prefers a high flame, at least at first. I like steaks and chops well browned on the outside and juicy inside. If the meat is thick, or if it is liked medium or well done, the heat of the broiler may be lowered during the latter part of cooking. If the above directions are followed, the secret of broiling without drying will be solved.

Veal and Pimiento Olive Sauce. One pound of veal steak; one-fourth cup flour; two tablespoons fat; two tablespoons flour; one-half teaspoon salt; one-half teaspoon paprika; two tablespoons brown sugar; one tablespoon lemon juice; one tablespoon chopped onion; one cup water; one-half cup chopped pimiento olives. Sprinkle steak on both sides with one-quarter cup of flour. Brown in the hot fat and remove from pan. Stir remaining flour into fat in pan. Stir in remaining ingredients and continue stirring over low heat until sauce is smooth. Add meat. Cover and simmer about 30 minutes until veal is tender.

Beef Brochette. One pound beef sirloin; four slices bacon; eight mushroom caps; salt; pepper; melted butter or salad oil.

Have meat cut into one inch cubes. Cut bacon into one inch pieces. Arrange beef, bacon and mushrooms alternately on four metal skewers. Season with salt and pepper. Brush with melted butter or salad oil. Broil in pre-heated broiler eight to 10 minutes, turning occasionally.

MYRNA HANSEN... A FORMER MISS ILLINOIS WHO WON THE MISS U.S.A. TITLE IN 1953.

By Joe Hyams

HOLLYWOOD.

WITH the "Miss Universe" contest almost on us, we went over to Universal International Studios to interview Myrna Hansen, sole survivor of all the contest winners and learned that she too has been dropped.

Of 25 contestants signed by the studio to contracts since the first contest in 1952, Myrna is the only one who lasted more than six months. The rest have gone on to husbands or oblivion.

We asked Myrna if she thinks winning a beauty contest is the best way to start a screen career.

"No, it's the worst," she said. "People always think of you as a bathing beauty and it takes a long time to make them realize you are serious about acting."

IN THE TWO YEARS she has been under contract to Universal International, Myrna said she has learned ballet, tap and modern dancing, horseback riding, fencing and acting at the studio's school, in addition to learning to "develop as a person."

Myrna lived a rigid schedule, devoting herself exclusively to her career. Every day from 9 to 6 she was at the studio, evenings were spent home with a tape recorder improving her speech. She has never been linked romantically in any columns, never dated a movie star and never even met her idol, Gregory Peck.

She had bit parts in 13 films and most of her non-study, non-acting time was spent posing for routine cheesecake or publicity photos. A brownette with a lovely face and figure, the studio made ample use of her charms.

A FORMER MISS ILLINOIS, Myrna entered the Miss Universe contest in 1953 and won the Miss U.S.A. title. Included in her prizes was a three-month studio contract with Universal International at $200 a week with six-month options.

"The acting bug has bit me, I guess," she admitted. We left her bewildered and dejected, sitting alone, and asked the studio representative why she was dropped. "Her salary just got too big for us," she said. "If we picked up her option she would be making $400 a week. That's a lot of money to pay a beauty queen."

The Dean Speaks Up The Squirrel Chaser

By Adele Starbird

Dean Starbird

MY lady boxer is an invincible optimist. After five years of ineffectual squirrel chasing, she still thinks she can catch one.

It's wonderful to see her charge, gathering all her force in a swift compact purposeful gallop, breaking abruptly as the squirrel disappears up a tree, and accepting her defeat with non-chalance.

One day a squirrel chose to run ahead of her on the grass instead of taking refuge. A young man walking behind me was angry. "Stop her!" he commanded. "Don't worry. She won't catch it." And even as I spoke, the squirrel decided that the race had gone far enough, and darted into the shrubbery. I thought the young man's rage did him credit, though it is novel to find myself cast in the role of barbarian.

LAST NIGHT just at dusk she came closer than usual, close enough to frighten a young squirrel into hysterics. It shined up a buttress of Graham Chapel with frantic chattering, it paused briefly at the top of the buttress to look down at us and scold like a fishwife, then it went on up to the roof, where it craned its neck over the parapet and watched us for several minutes, immobile and rigid.

From that great height it looked like a miniature mouse, comical in its defiance, yet dignified in its victory, having pitted its wits successfully against the two huge creatures standing far below.

LAST YEAR I reported that I had at last taught my boxer to make a sound in her throat—a triumph, for she had been mute. Now after more months of effort on her part and mine she can give a single sharp bark, but only when a piece of meat is dangling before her.

At present I'm trying to teach her the past tense, and some days I think that she is making progress. It came about this way. The sweetheart of a young man asked me to tutor him for an examination in French, and I couldn't refuse, because I'm very fond of her.

The young man was a born dilettante. He came regularly for his lessons, but he wouldn't study.

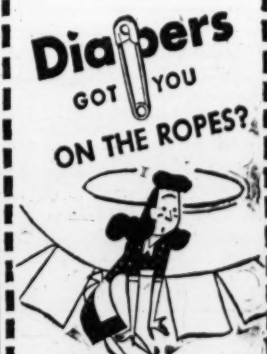

ONE DAY he said with his most patronizing charm, "But you must admit that I really do know a lot of verbs in French. It's just that I don't know the future and the past—all those things," and he swept "those things" away with a graceful and airy gesture.

"That's just the trouble my dog has," I said pleasantly. "She too knows a lot of verbs, but unfortunately they are all infinitives. It is very inconvenient. Take the verb 'walk.' She never knows whether I am referring to the walk we have had, or the walk we are about to have; she usually assumes it is the latter. If she could only learn the past tense, it would be so helpful. So now we are working on the past tense, Tiny and I.

Don't Buy Child's Regard

By Ruth Millett

TO parents faced with the problem of either giving in to all of a teen-ager's demands or having the teen-ager pull the old "You never let me do anything" or "All the other kids get to do such-and-such" line, the way one father faced up to the situation may be helpful.

When his 16-year-old daughter accused him of never letting her "do anything" because he had put his foot down a few times when he felt it was necessary to do so for her own protection, he said:

"I love you very much and, of course, I want you to love me. But I'm not going to buy your love by being an easy parent. Even more important than having you love me and having you think I'm a wonderful Dad is doing what I know is right for your own good and your own protection."

THE HONESTY AND THE STRENGTH of that father's answer to a daughter who was trying to high pressure him into turning a "no" he knew was right into a "yes" he knew was wrong is an attitude that is sadly lacking in many homes today where teen-agers rule the roost.

It puts the parents' position right on the line and it points out, as no amount of wheedling could do, that the main responsibility of parents to their teen-agers isn't to make them happy but to guide and protect them.

Too many parents today sell

Garlic Pork Chops
Pork chops may be rubbed with a cut clove of garlic before browning and braising. Chili powder may also be used for seasoning.

Frozen Giblets
Chicken giblets are best used when they are fresh. But if you do want to freeze them put them in a package separate from the chicken parts.

Prove it this vacation trip . . . your gas needle really moves more slowly with this great new economy gasoline!

It's new Mobilgas with higher octane, plus Mobil Power Compound—three important, gas-saving additives. Here's how these great additives save you money:

ADDITIVE #1 — Saves gasoline by controlling pre-ignition and spark plug mis-firing.

ADDITIVE #2 — Saves gasoline by reducing stalling on cool, damp days.

ADDITIVE #3 — Saves gasoline by combating engine-formed gum and by helping to keep carburetor and fuel system clear.

If your car uses "regular," you'll be thrilled at how much better your engine performs with new Mobilgas—how much gasoline you save. Try a tankful—and see!

NOW then we read about a boy or girl who, at the age of 12 or even less, has proved to be a hero. Perhaps the life of another child has been saved by the brave young person. It is very rare, however, for anyone to win fame in the field of science during childhood. I know of only one who has made an important discovery before reaching the teen-age stage of life. That was 12-year-old Mary Anning, who is known as the person who first discovered a skeleton of a Fish Lizard.

MARY LIVED IN SOUTHERN ENGLAND, and helped her father to sell shells to visitors who spent days or weeks at Lyme Regis, a seaside resort. She sold sea shells at the seashore. Aside from the shells of modern shell fish, Mr. Anning and his daughter had something special to offer. In layers of rock they found sea shells which had been left by shellfish of long ago. The rock was broken up and the shells were taken out. Then the shells were sold to visitors who wanted "something different."

One day Mary saw, in a layer of rock, a fishlike skeleton. Calling her father to the scene, she showed him what she had discovered. With great care, the skeleton was taken out. It proved to be the first-fossil of a Fish Lizard ever recorded.

SINCE THAT TIME, other Fish Lizards have been found. An excellent petrified skeleton was dug up in Germany. The scientific name for a Fish Lizard is "Ichthyosaurus."

Fish Lizards grew to be from eight to 10 feet long. They lived during the Jurassic Period, at the same time that dinosaurs roamed the land, and Flying Reptiles made flights in the air. Mary Anning grew up to be a scientist. At the age of 22 she found the remains of the first Plesiosaurus (or Near Lizard) on record. Later, at the age of 29, she discovered the first Flying Reptile to be taken from the rocks of Great Britain.
